

CLAT PG 2025 Question Paper with Solution Set D

Passage

Jurisprudence progresses as well as regresses. The late nineteenth-century analysis of rights which Hohfeld brought to completion makes a notable advance in clarity. But rights of each of the four Hohfeldian types are spoken of by Aquinas, as well as by the civilian lawyers of his age (and indeed of earlier ages). The word 'right' translates the Latin ius or jus, the root of the word's 'justice', 'jurist', 'juridical', and 'jurisprudence'. Though Aquinas does not use the plural forms of the word ius as often as we use the plural 'rights', it is a sheer mistake to claim, as some have, that he lacked or repudiated the concept of rights in the modern sense, in which a right is 'subjective' in the sense of belonging to someone (the subject of the right). When he defines justice as the steady willingness to give to others what is theirs, Aquinas immediately goes on to treat that phrase as synonymous with their right (ius suum); hence he treats a right/rights (ius/iura) as subjective. He also uses the word to speak of 'objective' right, that is, what interpersonal action or relationship is right-morally or legally, depending upon the context. Hobbes, who got inspired much in Benthamite and Austinian positivism, spurned the classical juristic tradition and defined 'right' as liberty in the sense of sheer absence of duty. So, people have most rights in the state of nature where they have no duties. This move exemplifies regression in legal and, more generally, in political and moral philosophy. Fortunately, the mistake is quite obvious. If no one has any duties to or in respect of others, it will be more accurate to say that no one has any rights at all. For everyone, in such a state of affairs, is subject to being destroyed or abused by everyone and anyone else, and everyone's actions can be impeded as much as any person or group cares, and is able, to arrange. The truth is that the concept of a right makes little sense save as (the Hohfeldian claim-right) a correlative of someone else's duty, or (the Hohfeldian liberty) as protected by someone else's duty of non-interference, or (the Hohfeldian power) as promoted by the duty of officials and others to recognize and effectuate one's acts-in-the-law (or their ethical counterparts), or (the Hohfeldian immunity) as protected by a similar duty of officials and others not to recognize another's juridical acts as it purportedly bears on my position. (Extracted, with edits and revision, from The Oxford Handbook of Jurisprudence and Philosophy of Law, Edited by Jules L. Coleman, Kenneth Einar Himma, and Scott J. Shapiro)

1. The Jural Correlative of Privilege is:

- (A) Duty
- (B) Liability
- (C) No right
- (D) Disability

Correct Answer: (C)

Solution:

The Jural Correlative of Privilege is “No right”. Privilege refers to the freedom to act without interference, and the jural correlative for such freedom is the absence of a corresponding duty or right on the part of others.

Quick Tip

Privilege is the right to do something without duty, so its correlative is no right on others' part.

2. Which of the following statements is not true about Treatise on Law by St. Thomas Aquinas?

- (A) He classified law into eternal law, natural law, human law, and divine law
- (B) He belonged to the Historical School of Jurisprudence
- (C) According to him, human nature is perfected or fully realised by harmonious and habitual excellence in the exercise of its intrinsic capacities and powers
- (D) The first primary precept is that good is to be pursued and done and evil avoided

Correct Answer: (B)

Solution:

St. Thomas Aquinas did not belong to the Historical School of Jurisprudence. Instead, his philosophy was grounded in natural law, and he classified laws into eternal, natural, human, and divine. His approach focused on moral theology and ethics.

Quick Tip

Aquinas' theory is based on Natural Law, not the Historical School.

3. Who said, “Right is an interest which is to be recognised, protected and enforced by law”?

- (A) Roscoe Pound
- (B) Salmond
- (C) Holland
- (D) Bentham

Correct Answer: (A)

Solution:

Roscoe Pound defined a right as an interest that is to be recognized, protected, and enforced by law. Pound's theory emphasizes the role of law in recognizing and securing individual interests.

Quick Tip

Roscoe Pound's view of law centers around the protection of individual interests.

4. Which of the following theories can be identified as a theory of right?

- (A) Bracket theory
- (B) Fiction theory
- (C) Will theory

(D) Concession theory

Correct Answer: (C)

Solution:

The Will Theory identifies rights as the power of an individual to exercise their will. It emphasizes individual autonomy and the ability of a person to decide for themselves within the legal framework.

Quick Tip

Will Theory focuses on the individual's ability to exercise their own will in law.

5. Consider the given statements:

Statement I: Rights in Rem are the rights in the things of others, also called encumbrances.

Statement II: Rights in Re propria means the right available against the whole world.

Statement III: Rights in Personam mean the rights in one's own things.

Choose the correct answer:

(A) Statement I is correct

(B) Statements I & II are correct

(C) Statements I, II & III are correct

(D) None of the above

Correct Answer: (D)

Solution:

Statement I is incorrect because Rights in Rem are rights against the world at large, not just encumbrances. Statement II is incorrect, as "Rights in Re propria" refers to rights over one's own property, not against the world. Statement III is also incorrect; Rights in Personam are rights against specific individuals, not related to one's own things.

Quick Tip

Passage

The Indian Contract Act is a classical model of contract law that covers various codes that govern general contracts as well as specific contracts. Contract of Bailment, one such type of contract under the Indian law of contract, talks about the delivery of goods from one person to another for a purpose. Under this contract, the bailee is given a right to lien. Right to lien is defined under Section 171 of the Indian Contract Act, 1872, which talks about the general right to lien of bankers, wharfingers, factors, attorneys of high courts and policy brokers. Generally, two parties are involved. The banker who lends money to the borrower or the customer, who then provides a security in exchange for the loan. Both parties are entitled to some of the rights that are associated with the securities that were provided. It is a possessory right which allows the bank to have temporary possession of the goods until the customer's outstanding debt is paid. The banker the right to act as the trustee of the property as long as they are acting within their powers as the custodian and do not sell the property without giving notice to the customer. The landmark judgment of Syndicate Bank v. Vijay Kumar and Others dealt with the issue of whether or not a banker's right to lien and set off was a general and customary right guaranteed to them. In furtherance of Halsbury's laws of England, this judgment recognised the banker's right to general lien was a right guaranteed by the law and not the contract. (Extracted with edits from "Critical Analysis of Bankers Right of General Lien" by Alisha Khalid Bhendwade, IJLRA, Vol. II, 2024)

6. Who among the following can exercise right to General Lien in the absence of any provision in the contract?

- (i) Factors
- (ii) Brokers
- (iii) Wharfingers
- (iv) Attorneys
- (A) iv

- (B) iv and ii
- (C) i and iii
- (D) All of them

Correct Answer: (D) All of them

Solution:

- In the absence of any contract provision, the general lien can be exercised by:
- Factors: Persons employed to sell goods on behalf of the owner.
- Brokers: Persons who arrange deals or transactions between parties.
- Wharfingers: Individuals who operate docks or wharves.
- Attorneys: Legal professionals can exercise a general lien over papers or documents related to a client's case.

Thus, the correct answer is (D).

Quick Tip

A general lien can be exercised by factors, brokers, wharfingers, and attorneys in the absence of a contract.

7. The Bailee's right to retain the goods until he receives due remuneration for the services, he has rendered in respect of them is known as:

- (A) Particular Lien
- (B) General Lien
- (C) Particular Retention
- (D) General Retention

Correct Answer: (B) General Lien

Solution:

- A general lien refers to the right of a bailee to retain possession of goods until they are paid for the services provided, even if the goods are unrelated to the particular service.

Thus, the correct answer is (B).

Quick Tip

The bailee's right to retain goods until payment is made for services rendered is called a General Lien.

8. With respect to bailment, a Banker:

- (A) Has a right to a particular lien on fixed deposits
- (B) Has a right to a general lien on fixed deposits
- (C) Has a right to a general lien on savings account
- (D) Has no right to a lien on a savings account or fixed deposits

Correct Answer: (B) Has a right to a general lien on fixed deposits

Solution:

- A banker can exercise a general lien over deposits like fixed deposits and securities held by them, to cover any dues owed by the depositor.

Thus, the correct answer is (B).

Quick Tip

A banker has a general lien over fixed deposits and securities to cover dues owed by the depositor.

9. Which one of the following is not an essential characteristic of Bailment?

- (A) Physical delivery of goods
- (B) Delivery of goods for some purpose
- (C) After the purpose is accomplished, the goods must be returned
- (D) Goods may be returned to the owner or otherwise disposed of according to the directions of the person delivering them

Correct Answer: (D) Goods may be returned to the owner or otherwise disposed of according to the directions of the person delivering them

Solution:

- Bailment involves: - Physical delivery of goods to the bailee.
- Purposeful delivery of goods for a specific purpose.
- Return of goods after the purpose is achieved.
- The disposition of goods according to the deliverer's directions is not an essential characteristic of bailment.

Thus, the correct answer is (D).

Quick Tip

In bailment, goods must be returned to the owner after the purpose is accomplished, not disposed of.

10. Which one of the following are bailments?

- (i) Hiring a Locker facility in a Bank
- (ii) Taking a Gold loan from the Bank
- (iii) Hypothecation of the vehicle for loan to the Bank
- (iv) Giving car for valet parking

- (A) iv
- (B) iv and ii
- (C) i and iii
- (D) All of them

Correct Answer: (A) iv

Solution:

- Bailment occurs when goods are delivered for a specific purpose with an agreement to return them.

- (i) Hiring a locker is not a bailment because the bank does not take possession of the goods.
- (ii) Taking a gold loan is a contract of pledge, not bailment.
- (iii) Hypothecation involves possession of goods by the lender as security for a loan, not a bailment.
- (iv) Giving a car for valet parking is a classic example of bailment, as the car is delivered for a purpose (parking) with an agreement to return it.

Thus, the correct answer is (A).

Quick Tip

Giving a car for valet parking is a typical example of bailment.

Passage

Dominic Ongwen, a former commander of the Lord's Resistance Army (LRA) in Uganda, was convicted by the International Criminal Court (ICC) in February 2021. The case marked a significant milestone in international criminal law, focusing on issues of child soldiering, forced marriage, and sexual and gender-based violence. Ongwen was found guilty of 61 counts of crimes against humanity and war crimes, including murder, torture, enslavement, forced marriage, rape, and conscription of children under the age of 15 into armed groups. The ICC's judgment emphasized the importance of accountability for leaders who exploit children in conflicts and commit sexual and gender-based crimes. A critical aspect of the judgment was the consideration of Ongwen's own history as a child soldier. Ongwen was abducted by the LRA at around the age of nine and was forced to commit atrocities as he rose through the ranks. The court balanced this background against the gravity of his crimes, ultimately ruling that his personal history did not absolve him of responsibility for his actions as an adult commander. The judgment is also notable for its comprehensive approach to reparations for victims. The ICC ordered collective reparations, including symbolic measures like memorials, physical and psychological rehabilitation, and financial compensation to support the victims and their communities. This case reinforces the ICC's commitment to addressing serious international crimes, particularly those involving vulnerable populations such as children and women and underscores the principles of justice and reparation in international criminal law. (This extract is taken from Prosecutor v. Dominic Ongwen (ICC, 2021))

11. Which principle of international criminal law ensures that individuals, regardless of their position or rank, can be held accountable for committing serious international crimes?

- (A) Sovereign immunity
- (B) Command responsibility
- (C) Diplomatic immunity
- (D) Universal jurisdiction

Correct Answer: (B) Command responsibility

Solution: The principle of "Command responsibility" ensures that leaders can be held accountable for crimes committed by those under their command. This applies regardless of rank, as seen in the case of Dominic Ongwen, where he was held responsible for the actions of his subordinates in the LRA.

Quick Tip

Command responsibility holds military or civilian leaders accountable for crimes committed by subordinates under their control, even if they didn't directly commit the crimes.

12. In the context of international criminal law, what does the principle of "individual criminal responsibility" entail?

- (A) Only states can be held accountable for international crimes
- (B) Individuals can be held personally liable for committing war crimes, crimes against humanity, and genocide
- (C) Individuals are immune from prosecution if they act under state orders

(D) Only military personnel can be held responsible for international crimes

Correct Answer: (B) Individuals can be held personally liable for committing war crimes, crimes against humanity, and genocide

Solution: The principle of "individual criminal responsibility" establishes that individuals, not just states, can be held criminally liable for committing international crimes such as war crimes, crimes against humanity, and genocide, as demonstrated in the Ongwen case.

Quick Tip

Individual criminal responsibility emphasizes personal liability for international crimes, even if the individual was acting under orders.

13. The concept of "crimes against humanity" includes which of the following acts, as exemplified in the Prosecutor v. Dominic Ongwen case?

- (A) Piracy and terrorism
- (B) Enslavement, forced marriage, and sexual violence
- (C) Espionage and sabotage
- (D) Intellectual property theft

Correct Answer: (B) Enslavement, forced marriage, and sexual violence

Solution: "Crimes against humanity" encompasses serious offenses like enslavement, forced marriage, and sexual violence, which were key elements in the Ongwen case. These crimes are committed as part of a widespread or systematic attack on civilians.

Quick Tip

Crimes against humanity include acts like enslavement, forced marriage, and sexual violence, which target civilians on a large scale.

14. What is the significance of the principle of "complementarity" in the context of the International Criminal Court (ICC)?

- (A) The ICC can prosecute cases only when national jurisdictions are unwilling or unable to do so
- (B) The ICC has primary jurisdiction over all international crimes
- (C) The ICC can only prosecute crimes committed within its member states
- (D) The ICC shares jurisdiction equally with national courts

Correct Answer: (A) The ICC can prosecute cases only when national jurisdictions are unwilling or unable to do so

Solution: The principle of complementarity states that the International Criminal Court will only intervene when national courts are either unwilling or unable to prosecute cases of international crimes. This principle respects national sovereignty while ensuring justice when domestic legal systems fail.

Quick Tip

The principle of complementarity ensures the ICC steps in only when national courts are unable or unwilling to prosecute international crimes.

15. Which of the following statements best describes the significance of the Prosecutor v. Dominic Ongwen case in the context of international criminal law?

- (A) It was the first case to address environmental crimes in international conflicts
- (B) It marked a milestone in addressing sexual and gender-based violence and the exploitation of children in armed conflicts
- (C) It was the first case to involve cybercrimes committed by international armed groups
- (D) It primarily focused on the financial aspects of running an armed group

Correct Answer: (B) It marked a milestone in addressing sexual and gender-based violence and the exploitation of children in armed conflicts

Solution: The Prosecutor v. Dominic Ongwen case was significant as it marked a major step forward in addressing sexual and gender-based violence, as well as the exploitation of children in armed conflict. Ongwen's conviction highlighted the ICC's focus on crimes such as enslavement, forced marriage, and the recruitment of child soldiers.

Quick Tip

The Ongwen case is pivotal in addressing child soldiering, sexual violence, and forced marriage in armed conflict, setting precedents in international criminal law.

Passage

Whether an agreement is a mortgage by conditional sale or sale with an option to repurchase is a vexed question to be considered in the facts of each case. The essentials of an agreement, to qualify as a mortgage by conditional sale, can succinctly be summarized. An ostensible sale with transfer of possession and ownership, but containing a clause for reconveyance in accordance with Section 58(c) of the Act, will clothe the agreement as a mortgage by conditional sale. Referring to Section 58(c) of the Transfer of Property Act the observed, "A deeming fiction was added in the negative that a transaction shall not be deemed to be a mortgage unless the condition for reconveyance is contained in the document which purports to effect the sale." The issue under adjudication was whether the transaction between the parties was an absolute sale of the property or it was a mortgage. The court relied upon the case Bishwanath Prasad Singh v. Rajendra Prasad and Anr, 2006 SC and held that A bare perusal of the said provision clearly shows that a mortgage by conditional sale must be evidenced by one document whereas a sale with condition of retransfer may be evidenced by more than one document. A sale with a condition of retransfer is not a mortgage. It is not a partial transfer. By reason of such a transfer all rights have been transferred reserving only a personal right to the purchaser and such a personal right would be lost unless the same is exercised within the stipulated time. The execution of separate agreement for reconveyance, either contemporaneously or subsequently, shall militate against the agreement being mortgaged by conditional sale. There must exist a debtor and creditor relationship. The valuation of the property, and the transaction value, along with the duration of time for reconveyance, are important considerations to decide the nature of the agreement. There will have to be a cumulative consideration of these factors, along with the recitals in the agreement, intention of the parties, coupled with other attendant circumstances, considered in a holistic manner. The language used in the agreement may not always be conclusive. (Extract from Prakash (Dead) By LR. V. G. Aradhya Ors, 2023 SC)

16. The proper remedy for the mortgagee in a mortgage by conditional sale is:

- (A) to institute a suit for sale
- (B) to suit for recovery of money
- (C) to institute a suit for foreclosure
- (D) Both (A) and (B)

Correct Answer: (D) Both (A) and (B)

Solution:

In a mortgage by conditional sale, the mortgagee has two remedies: 1. He can file a suit for sale if the mortgagor defaults, allowing the sale of the property to recover the debt. 2. He can also sue for the recovery of money if the mortgagor fails to repay the loan as per the agreement.

Thus, both (A) and (B) are correct.

Quick Tip

In a mortgage by conditional sale, the remedy can be a suit for sale or a suit for money recovery.

17. One of the conditions of mortgage by conditional sale is that:

- (A) on payment of mortgage money, the sale shall be voidable
- (B) on payment of mortgage money, the sale shall become void
- (C) the mortgagee shall receive the rent and profits and will appropriate the same towards the dues
- (D) All of the above

Correct Answer: (A) on payment of mortgage money, the sale shall be voidable

Solution:

- In a mortgage by conditional sale, the sale becomes voidable on payment of the mortgage money, meaning the mortgagor can redeem the property. - Option (C) is true for mortgage by possession, not conditional sale.

Thus, the correct answer is (A).

Quick Tip

In a mortgage by conditional sale, the sale becomes voidable once the debt is paid.

18. What is the common clause between mortgage by conditional sale and English mortgage?

- (A) Transfer of ownership of mortgaged property
- (B) Transfer of possession of mortgaged property
- (C) The right of mortgagee to sell the property
- (D) Delivery of documents of title

Correct Answer: (C) The right of mortgagee to sell the property

Solution:

- Both mortgage by conditional sale and English mortgage allow the mortgagee to sell the mortgaged property in case of default.

- The key distinction is that in an English mortgage, the mortgagee holds the property in trust until the loan is repaid, while in a conditional sale, the property is sold conditionally.

Thus, the correct answer is (C).

Quick Tip

Both types of mortgages allow the mortgagee the right to sell the property on default.

19. What is the limitation period in case of mortgage by conditional sale?

- (A) 3 years
- (B) 12 years
- (C) 30 years
- (D) No time limit

Correct Answer: (B) 12 years

Solution:

- The limitation period for the redemption of a mortgage by conditional sale is 12 years. This is the period within which the mortgagor can reclaim the property after payment of the mortgage debt.

Thus, the correct answer is (B).

Quick Tip

The limitation period for a mortgage by conditional sale is generally 12 years.

20. Which of the following expresses the distinction between a mortgage by conditional sale and a sale with a condition of repurchase?

- (A) In a mortgage the debt subsists and a right to redeem remains with the debtor, but a sale with a condition of repurchase is not a lending and borrowing arrangement
- (B) In a mortgage by conditional sale, generally the amount of consideration is far below the value of the property in the market, but in a sale with a condition of repurchase, the amount of consideration is generally equal to or close to the value of the property
- (C) Both (A) and (B)
- (D) Neither (A) nor (B)

Correct Answer: (C) Both (A) and (B)

Solution:

- Option (A): In a mortgage, the debt remains, and the mortgagor has a right to redeem. In a sale with a condition of repurchase, the transaction is considered a sale with a repurchase option and not a borrowing arrangement. - Option (B): In a mortgage by conditional sale, the consideration is often less than the property value, while in a sale with a condition of repurchase, the consideration is closer to the property's value.

Thus, the correct answer is (C).

Quick Tip

In a mortgage by conditional sale, the debt subsists, but in a sale with repurchase, the transaction is closer to a sale.

Passage

The Companies Act, 2013 does not deal with insolvency and bankruptcy when the companies are unable to pay their debts or the aspects relating to the revival and rehabilitation of the companies and their winding up if revival and rehabilitation is not possible. In principle, it cannot be doubted that the cases of revival or winding up of the company on the ground of insolvency and inability to pay debts are different from cases where companies are wound up under Section 271 of the Companies Act, 2013. The two situations are not identical. Under Section 271 of the Companies Act, 2013, even a running and financially sound company can also be wound up for the reasons in clauses (A) to (e). The reasons and grounds for winding up under Section 271 of the Companies Act, 2013 are vastly different from the reasons and grounds for the revival and rehabilitation scheme as envisaged under the IBC. The two enactments deal with two distinct situations and in our opinion, they cannot be equated when we examine whether there is discrimination or violation of Article 14 of the Constitution of India. For the revival and rehabilitation of the companies, certain sacrifices are required from all quarters, including the workmen. In case of insolvent companies, for the sake of survival and regeneration, everyone, including the secured creditors and the Central and State Government, are required to make sacrifices. The workmen also have a stake and benefit from the revival of the company, and therefore unless it is found that the sacrifices envisaged for the workmen, which certainly form a separate class, are onerous and burdensome so as to be manifestly unjust and arbitrary, we will not set aside the legislation, solely on the ground that some or marginal sacrifice is to be made by the workers. We would also reject the argument that to find out whether there was a violation of Article 14 of the Constitution of India or whether the right to life under Article 21 Constitution of India was infringed, we must word by word examine the waterfall mechanism envisaged under the Companies Act, 2013, where the company is wound up in terms of grounds (A) to (e) of Section 271 of the Companies Act, 2013; and the rights of the workmen when the insolvent company is sought to be revived, rehabilitated or wound up under the Code. The grounds and situations in the context of the objective and purpose of the two enactments are entirely different. 21. In which of the following cases, it was held by the Supreme Court addressed shareholders rights, RB's role and judicial Intervention?

- (A) Life Insurance Corporation of India v. Escorts Ltd
- (B) R. K. Dalmia v. Delhi Administration
- (C) Dale And Carrington Invt. P. Ltd. v. P.K. Prathapan
- (D) Rohtas Industries Ltd v. S.D. Agarwal & Anr

Correct Answer: (A)

Solution:

In the case of Life Insurance Corporation of India v. Escorts Ltd (1986), the Supreme Court addressed the rights of shareholders, the role of the Board of Directors, and the scope of judicial intervention in corporate matters, especially concerning decisions affecting the rights of minority shareholders.

Quick Tip

This case is significant for defining the rights of shareholders and the Board's role in corporate governance.

22. The extent to which a corporation as a legal person can be held criminally liable for its acts and omissions and for those of the natural persons employed by it is called

- (A) Corporate manslaughter
- (B) Lifting the corporate veil
- (C) Corporate criminal liability
- (D) Corporate social responsibility

Correct Answer: (C)

Solution:

Corporate criminal liability refers to the legal principle that a corporation, as a legal entity, can be held criminally liable for its own acts or the acts of its employees or agents within the scope of their employment.

Quick Tip

Corporate criminal liability extends the criminal responsibility of the corporation for actions of its employees.

23. In which of the following cases, the constitutionality of the Insolvency and Bankruptcy Code, 2016 was upheld by the Supreme Court?

- (A) RPS Infrastructure Ltd. v. Union of India
- (B) Paschimanchal Vidyut Vitran Nigam Ltd. v. Union of India
- (C) Union Bank of India v. Financial Creditors of M/s Amtek Auto Limited
- (D) Swiss Ribbons v. Union of India

Correct Answer: (D)

Solution:

In the case of Swiss Ribbons Pvt. Ltd. v. Union of India (2019), the Supreme Court upheld the constitutionality of the Insolvency and Bankruptcy Code (IBC), 2016, affirming that the provisions of the Code do not violate the Constitution.

Quick Tip

The Swiss Ribbons case confirmed the validity of IBC, 2016, a landmark in insolvency law.

24. A Director other than a managing Director or a whole-time Director or a nominee Director who does not have any material or pecuniary relationship with the company/Directors other than the remuneration is called

- (A) Impartial Director
- (B) Promoter
- (C) Independent Director
- (D) Associate Director

Correct Answer: (C)

Solution:

An Independent Director is a director who does not have any material or pecuniary relationship with the company or its directors, except for their remuneration, and is not involved in the day-to-day management of the company.

Quick Tip

Independent Directors play a crucial role in corporate governance by ensuring unbiased decisions.

25. Which among the following is not a duty of a Director of the company?

- (A) To file return of allotments
- (B) To disclose interest
- (C) Duty to call upon the shareholders to attend the Board meetings
- (D) To convene General meeting

Correct Answer: (C)

Solution:

Directors have several duties, including filing returns of allotments, disclosing their interest, and convening General Meetings, but it is not their duty to call upon shareholders to attend Board meetings. This is generally the responsibility of the Board itself.

Quick Tip

Directors' duties include ensuring compliance with corporate governance but not managing shareholders' attendance at Board meetings.

Passage

As new situations arise; the law has to be evolved in order to meet the challenge of such new situations. Law cannot afford to remain static. It should keep pace with changing socio-economic norms. We have to evolve new principles and lay down new norms which would adequately deal with the new problems which arise in a highly industrialized economy. We cannot allow our judicial thinking to be constricted by reference to the law as it prevails in England or for that matter in any other foreign country. We no longer need the crutches of a foreign legal order. We are certainly prepared to receive light from whatever source it comes but we have to build up our own jurisprudence and we cannot countenance an argument that merely because the new law does not recognize the rule of strict and absolute liability, we cannot have it too. Court should not feel inhibited by this rule merely because the new law does not recognise the rule of strict and absolute liability. The enterprise must be held to be under an obligation to provide that the hazardous or inherently dangerous activity in which it is engaged must be conducted with the highest standards of safety. The court discussed the scope of the Epistolary jurisdiction and reiterated that procedure being merely a handmaid of justice should not stand in the way to access to justice. (Extracted with edits from M.C. Mehta v. Union of India (1987) 1 SCC 395)

26. In which of the following cases, the term “Epistolary Jurisdiction” was first used in India?

- (A) Fertilizer Corporation Kamgar Union v. Union of India, 1981 SC
- (B) Mumbai Kamgar Sabha v. Abdul Bhai, 1976 SC
- (C) ADM Jabalpur v. Shivkant Shukla, 1976 SC
- (D) Amba Devi v. Union of India, 1984 SC

Correct Answer: (A)

Solution:

The term “Epistolary Jurisdiction” was first used in India in the case of Fertilizer Corporation Kamgar Union v. Union of India, 1981 SC. The Supreme Court, in this case, allowed letters to be treated as writ petitions, thus using epistolary jurisdiction to address grievances, especially those of workers, without requiring a formal petition.

Quick Tip

Epistolary jurisdiction allows the court to entertain letters as writ petitions, broadening access to justice.

27. Which of the following offences under the Indian Penal Code (IPC) has a strict liability connotation?

- (A) Theft under Section 378 IPC
- (B) Defamation under Section 499 IPC
- (C) Bigamy under Section 494 IPC
- (D) Selling adulterated food or drink under Section 272 IPC

Correct Answer: (D)

Solution:

Section 272 of the IPC, which deals with the sale of adulterated food or drink, imposes strict liability. In such offences, the seller is liable irrespective of intention or knowledge of the adulteration, focusing solely on the act of selling adulterated products.

Quick Tip

Strict liability offences do not require proof of intent or knowledge, just the act itself.

28. “The Rule of Law is that the person who, for his own purpose, brings on his land and collects and keeps there anything likely to do mischief if it escapes, must keep it in at his peril: and if he does not do so is prima facie answerable for all the damage which is the natural consequence of its escape”.

Above rule has been evolved by the:

- (A) Lord Burrough
- (B) Justice Blackburn
- (C) Lord Baron Diplock
- (D) None of the above

Correct Answer: (B)

Solution:

The rule in question is from the case of Rylands v. Fletcher (1868), which was articulated by Justice Blackburn. It established the principle that if a person keeps something on their land that is likely to cause damage if it escapes, they are strictly liable for any resulting damage.

Quick Tip

The rule from Rylands v. Fletcher imposes strict liability for certain escapes from land.

29. The rule of Rylands v. Fletcher is not applicable:

- (A) When the escape is due to vis major or act of God
- (B) When the damage is due to the wrongful or malicious act of a stranger
- (C) When the escape is due to the plaintiff's own fault
- (D) All of the above

Correct Answer: (D)

Solution:

The rule of Rylands v. Fletcher does not apply in cases where the escape is due to vis major (act of God), wrongful or malicious acts of a stranger, or the plaintiff's own fault. These are exceptions where the defendant may not be held strictly liable.

Quick Tip

Vis major, stranger's actions, and the plaintiff's fault are exceptions to strict liability.

30. In India, the 'Absolute Liability' theory on the basis of injuries caused by hazardous industries was propounded by:

- (A) V.R. Krishna Iyer, J.
- (B) P.N. Bhagwati, C.J.
- (C) Kuldeep Singh, J.
- (D) M.N. Venkatachaliah, C.J.

Correct Answer: (B)

Solution:

The concept of 'Absolute Liability' was propounded by Chief Justice P.N. Bhagwati in the case of M.C. Mehta v. Union of India, 1987 SC. This theory holds industries absolutely liable for any harm caused by hazardous or dangerous activities, regardless of fault or intent.

Quick Tip

'Absolute liability' applies to industries involved in hazardous activities, irrespective of intent or negligence.

The landmark judgment of Bangalore Water Supply and Sewerage Board v. A. Rajappa &

Others, delivered by the Supreme Court of India in 1978, significantly influenced the interpretation of the term 'industry' under the Industrial Disputes Act, 1947. The case centered on whether the Bangalore Water Supply and Sewerage Board, a statutory body, could be classified as an industry under the Act, thereby making its employees eligible for certain protections and benefits. Prior to this case, the definition of 'industry' had been subject to varied interpretations, leading to confusion and inconsistency in its application. The Industrial Disputes Act, 1947, broadly defined 'industry' to include any business, trade, undertaking, manufacture, or calling of employers and any calling, service, employment, handicraft, or industrial occupation or avocation of workmen. However, this expansive definition left room for ambiguity, especially concerning statutory bodies and non-profit organizations. In this case, the Bangalore Water Supply and Sewerage Board argued that it was not an industry, emphasizing its statutory duties and public welfare objectives. The Board contended that its primary purpose was to provide essential services, not to engage in profit-making activities typical of private enterprises. On the other hand, the respondents, including A. Rajappa, argued that the Board's activities fell within the scope of an industry as defined by the Act, and thus, its employees should be entitled to the benefits and protections accorded to workers in industries. The Supreme Court, in its judgment, undertook a comprehensive analysis of the term 'industry.' The bench, led by Chief Justice M. Hameedullah Beg, laid down a broad and inclusive definition of 'industry.' The Court asserted that what mattered was the nature of the activity and the relationship between the employer and the employees. This interpretation aimed to ensure that a wide range of workers, including those employed in public utility services, statutory bodies, and even some non-profit organizations, would be covered under the protective umbrella of the Industrial Disputes Act. The decision in Bangalore Water Supply v. A. Rajappa & Others had far-reaching implications. It extended the scope of labour protections to a broader spectrum of workers, ensuring that more employees could benefit from the dispute resolution mechanisms and other safeguards provided under the Industrial Disputes Act. This judgment underscored the judiciary's role in interpreting labour laws to promote social justice and protect workers' rights in a rapidly industrializing nation. (Extract from Bangalore Water Supply v. A. Rajappa & Others, 1978 2 SCC)

31. According to the Supreme Court's judgment, what is the most important factor in determining whether an activity constitutes an industry?

- (A) The profit-making motive of the employer
- (B) When there are multiple activities carried on by an establishment, its dominant function has to be considered. If the dominant function is not commercial, benefits of a workman of an industry under Industrial Dispute Act may be given
- (C) The nature of the activity and the authority of the employer over its employees
- (D) When there are multiple activities carried on by an establishment, all the activities must be considered. Even if one activity is commercial, the employees will not get the benefit of workman of an industry under the Industrial Dispute Act

Correct Answer: (B) When there are multiple activities carried on by an establishment, its dominant function has to be considered. If the dominant function is not commercial, benefits of a workman of an industry under Industrial Dispute Act may be given Solution: The Supreme Court ruled that when an establishment carries out multiple activities, its dominant function determines whether the establishment constitutes an industry under the Industrial Disputes Act. If the dominant function is not commercial, workers can still receive benefits under the Act.

Quick Tip

In cases involving multiple activities, the dominant function dictates whether workers qualify for industry benefits under the Industrial Disputes Act.

32. Which of the following best describes the broader impact of the judgment?

- (A) It reduced labour protections for workers
- (B) It extended labour protections to a broader spectrum of workers
- (C) It had no significant impact on labour laws
- (D) It only affected private sector workers

Correct Answer: (B) It extended labour protections to a broader spectrum of workers

Solution: The judgment significantly expanded labour protections by broadening the definition of "industry," allowing more workers, including those in sectors previously excluded, to benefit from the protections provided under the Industrial Disputes Act.

Quick Tip

The judgment's impact was to widen the scope of labour protections, benefiting a broader range of workers.

33. Which of the following best describes the term 'industry' as defined by the Supreme Court in this judgment?

- (A) Any activity involving profit-making
- (B) Any systematic activity organized by cooperation between an employer and employees for producing or distributing goods and services
- (C) Only activities conducted by private enterprises
- (D) Activities limited to manufacturing sectors

Correct Answer: (B) Any systematic activity organized by cooperation between an employer and employees for producing or distributing goods and services

Solution: The Supreme Court defined "industry" as any activity that involves systematic cooperation between an employer and employees for the purpose of producing or distributing goods and services, regardless of whether it is profit-oriented or not.

Quick Tip

The term "industry" includes any systematic, cooperative activity involving goods or service production/distribution, regardless of profit-making motives.

34. In which of the following landmark judgement, the Supreme Court held that when an association or society of apartment owners employs workers for personal services to its members, those workers do not qualify as workmen under the Act and the association is not an “Industry” under the Industrial Disputes Act?

- (A) Som Vihar Apartment Owners’ Housing Maintenance Society Ltd. v. Workmen, 2009 SC
- (B) Anand Vihar Apartment Owners’ Society Ltd. v. Workmen, 2024 SC
- (C) Kanchanjunga Building Employees Union v. Kanchanjunga Flat Owners Society & Anr., 2024 SC
- (D) None of the above

Correct Answer: (A) Som Vihar Apartment Owners’ Housing Maintenance Society Ltd. v. Workmen, 2009 SC

Solution: In the 2009 case, the Supreme Court ruled that when apartment owners’ societies employ workers for personal services to members, these workers do not qualify as “workmen” under the Industrial Disputes Act, and the society is not considered an “industry.”

Quick Tip

In cases involving personal services to society members, workers are not considered “workmen” under the Industrial Disputes Act.

35. Under the Industrial Dispute Act, 1947, what is the role of the “Works Committee” and which of the following correctly describes its function?

- (A) The Works committee is a body formed by the Central government to address wage disputes between employer and employee in public sector industries
- (B) The Works committee is a grievance redressal body constituted by the employer, primarily to promote measures for securing and preserving amity and good relations between the employer and employee
- (C) The Works Committee is responsible for making binding decisions on industrial disputes related to layoffs, retrenchment and closure of industrial units
- (D) All of the above

Correct Answer: (B) The Works committee is a grievance redressal body constituted by the employer, primarily to promote measures for securing and preserving amity and good relations between the employer and employee

Solution: The Works Committee under the Industrial Disputes Act is a body formed by the employer to address grievances and promote amicable relations between the employer and employees. It plays an important role in creating a cooperative work environment but does not have the authority to make binding decisions on industrial disputes related to layoffs or retrenchment.

Quick Tip

The Works Committee's primary role is to promote good relations and resolve grievances between employers and employees, not to address binding industrial disputes.

Passage

Vivian Bose, J., had observed that Section 106 of the Evidence Act is designed to meet certain exceptional cases in which it would be impossible for the prosecution to establish certain facts which are particularly within the knowledge of the accused. In Shambu Nath Mehra vs. The State of Ajmer (1956 SCR 199) the learned Judge has stated the legal principle thus: "This lays down the general rule that in a criminal case the burden of proof is on the prosecution and section 106 is designed to meet certain exceptional cases in which it would be impossible, or at any rate disproportionately difficult for the prosecution to establish facts which are 'especially' within the knowledge of the accused and which he could prove without difficulty or inconvenience. The word 'especially' underscores facts that are pre-eminently or exceptionally within the knowledge of the accused. It added, if the section were to be interpreted otherwise, it would lead to the very startling conclusion that in a murder case the burden lies on the accused to prove that he did not commit the murder because who could know better than him whether he did or did not." It is evident that it cannot be the intention and Privy Council has twice refused to construe this section, as reproduced in certain other Acts outside India, to mean that the burden lies on the accused person to show that he did not commit the crime for which he is tried. These cases are Attygalle v. the King, 1936 PC 169 (AIR V 23) (A) and Seneviratne v. R, 1936-3 All ER 36 at p.49 (B). In case resting on circumstantial evidence, an accused person's failure to provide a reasonable explanation as required by S. 106 could serve as an additional link in the chain of circumstances. (Based on facts from State of West Bengal vs. Mir Mohammad Omar Ors, AIR 2000 SUPREME COURT 2988)

36. Under the Indian Evidence Act, 1872, in cases where the burden of proof lies on the prosecution, which of the following accurately reflects the relationship between Section 101 and 106 of IEA, 1872?

- (A) Section 106 is an exception to Section 101
- (B) Section 106 is intended to relieve the prosecution of their duty to prove the case beyond reasonable doubt under Section 101
- (C) Both A and B
- (D) Neither A nor B

Correct Answer: (A) Section 106 is an exception to Section 101

Solution: Section 101 of the Indian Evidence Act, 1872, provides that the burden of proof lies on the prosecution. However, Section 106 provides an exception, shifting the burden of proof to the accused in certain cases where the facts are within his special knowledge.

Quick Tip

Section 106 applies when it is impossible for the prosecution to establish facts within the knowledge of the accused.

37. 'Any person' in Section 106 of the Indian Evidence Act refers to:

- (A) A party to the suit/proceeding
- (B) A stranger to the suit/proceeding
- (C) A witness

(D) None of the above

Correct Answer: (A) A party to the suit/proceeding

Solution: The term "any person" in Section 106 of the Indian Evidence Act refers to a party to the suit or proceeding, and not necessarily a stranger or witness. This person is expected to provide evidence related to facts within their knowledge.

Quick Tip

Section 106 applies when a fact is within the knowledge of a party, not a witness.

38. In which of the recent following cases, Supreme Court expounded the principles relating to the applicability of S. 106 of Indian Evidence Act?

- (A) Anees v. The State Govt. of NCT, 2024 SC
- (B) Anita v. NCT of Delhi, 2024 SC
- (C) Abhay v. Union of India, 2024 SC
- (D) Anish v. The State Govt. of NCT, 2024 SC

Correct Answer: (A) Anees v. The State Govt. of NCT, 2024 SC

Solution:

- Statement (A) is correct: In the case of Anees v. The State Govt. of NCT, 2024 SC, the Supreme Court expounded on the applicability of Section 106 of the Indian Evidence Act. The section deals with the burden of proof where a party has special knowledge regarding a fact.
- Statement (B) is incorrect: This case does not expound the principles relating to Section 106 of the Indian Evidence Act.
- Statement (C) is incorrect: Abhay v. Union of India does not deal with the applicability of Section 106.
- Statement (D) is incorrect: Similarly, Anish v. The State Govt. of NCT does not focus on Section 106.

Quick Tip

Section 106 of the Indian Evidence Act shifts the burden of proof when a fact is specially within the knowledge of one party.

39. What is the phrase “Presumptions are like bats, flitting in the twilight but disappearing in the sunshine of facts” indicate?

- (A) Presumption shifts the burden of proof to the party against whom the presumption operates, but the burden shifts back to the original party once rebutting facts are presented
- (B) Presumption is a substantive piece of evidence and it completely relieves the prosecution of its burden of proof, as long as the presumption is established in the beginning of the trial
- (C) There are different categories of presumptions and the highest degree of presumption shifts the burden of proof permanently to the accused, who must disprove the presumption beyond reasonable doubt
- (D) Presumptions are irrefutable facts that, once established, cannot be negated by evidence brought forth in the case

Correct Answer: (A) Presumption shifts the burden of proof to the party against whom the presumption operates, but the burden shifts back to the original party once rebutting facts are presented

Solution: The phrase illustrates that presumptions are not irrefutable. They can be rebutted if evidence disproving them is presented, thus shifting the burden of proof back to the original party.

Quick Tip

Presumptions are temporary until facts that contradict them are established.

40. Which of the theories emanate from Section 106 of Indian Evidence Act?

1. Doctrine of Res Ipsa Loquitor

2. Theory of reverse burden of proof
3. Doctrine of last seen together
4. Presumption of innocence

Select the correct option:

- (A) 1 and 2
- (B) 2 and 3
- (C) 3 and 4
- (D) 1 and 4

Correct Answer: (B) 2 and 3

Solution: Section 106 is linked to the theory of reverse burden of proof (where the accused must disprove certain facts) and the doctrine of last seen together (relevant in criminal cases involving circumstantial evidence).

Quick Tip

Section 106 can be used to establish circumstantial evidence, such as "last seen together" scenarios.

Passage

The jurisdiction of this court has been invoked for protecting the Great Indian Bustard and the Lesser Florican, both of whom are on the verge of extinction. India faces a number of pressing near term challenges that directly impact the right to a healthy environment, particularly for vulnerable and indigenous communities including forest dwellers. The lack of reliable electricity supply for many citizens not only hinders economic development but also disproportionately affects communities, including women and low-income households, further perpetuating inequalities. Therefore, the right to a healthy environment encapsulates the principle that every individual has the entitlement to live in an environment that is clean, safe, and conducive to their well-being. The promotion of renewable energy sources plays a crucial role in promoting social equity by ensuring access to clean and affordable energy of all segments of society, especially in rural and underserved areas. This contributes to poverty alleviation, enhances quality of life, and fosters inclusive growth and development across the nation. Therefore, transitioning to renewable energy is not just an environmental imperative but also a strategic investment in India's future prosperity, resilience and sustainability. The right to equality under Art. 14 and the right to life under Art. 21 must be appreciated in the context of the decisions of this court, the actions and commitments of the state on national and international level, and scientific consensus on climate change and its adverse effects. By recognising the right to a healthy environment, states are compelled to prioritise environmental protection and sustainable development, thereby addressing the root cause of climate change and safeguarding the well-being of present and future generations. (Extract taken from MK Ranjitsinh and Ors v. Union of India, 2024 SC)

41. What is the objective of United Nations Framework Convention on Climate Change (UNFCCC)?

- (A) To enforce international environmental treaties on climate change at national level
- (B) To stabilize greenhouse gas concentrations in the atmosphere to prevent dangerous human-induced interference with climate change
- (C) To stabilize carbon footprints and oversee global diversity protection efforts
- (D) All of the above

Correct Answer: (B)

Solution:

The main objective of the United Nations Framework Convention on Climate Change (UNFCCC) is to stabilize greenhouse gas concentrations in the atmosphere to prevent dangerous human-induced interference with the climate system. This goal is outlined in Article 2 of the Convention, emphasizing the need for international cooperation in combating climate change.

Quick Tip

Remember, UNFCCC aims at stabilizing greenhouse gases, not necessarily enforcing treaties at the national level.

42. Which of the following Sustainable Development Goals (SDGs) specifically addresses climate change?

- (A) SDG 31
- (B) SDG 13
- (C) SDG 12
- (D) SDG 15

Correct Answer: (B)

Solution:

SDG 13 aims to take urgent action to combat climate change and its impacts. It specifically targets the climate crisis and addresses measures to reduce its adverse effects on ecosystems and communities globally.

Quick Tip

SDG 13 is the key goal focused on climate action. Ensure to remember it when tackling questions related to climate change.

43. In which of the following cases, the Supreme Court held that any disturbance of the basic environment elements namely air, water, and soil, which are necessary for life, would be hazardous to 'life' within the meaning of Article 21 of the Constitution of India and Art. 48A and 51A(g) must be interpreted in the light of Article 21?

- (A) M.C. Mehta v. Union of India, 2000 SC
- (B) M.C. Mehta v. Kamal Nath, 2000 SC
- (C) Vellore Citizens Welfare Forum v. Union of India, 1996 SC

(D) M.C. Mehta v. Union Carbide Commission, 1991 SC

Correct Answer: (C)

Solution:

In the case of Vellore Citizens Welfare Forum v. Union of India (1996 SC), the Supreme Court held that any disturbance of the environment—air, water, and soil—which are necessary for life, is a violation of the right to life under Article 21 of the Constitution. This ruling expanded the interpretation of the fundamental right to include the right to a healthy environment.

Quick Tip

The Vellore case broadened the scope of Article 21, making environmental protection a core part of the right to life.

44. Which of the following statements are correct?

- (A) The people of India do not have a right against the adverse effects of climate change as previous interpretations of Article 21 solely focused on individual freedoms and the right to a clean and pollution-free environment.
- (B) The Supreme Court for the first time recognized the right to be free from the adverse effects of climate change in its recent judgment MK Ranjitsinh and Ors v. Union of India, 2024 SC.
- (C) There is no separate recognition given by the Supreme Court for the 'right to be free from adverse effects of climate change' as it was already recognized under 'right to a clean environment'.
- (D) None of the Above

Correct Answer: (C)

Solution:

The Supreme Court has recognized the 'right to a clean and healthy environment' as part of the right to life under Article 21. While the Supreme Court did not create a separate right specifically for the adverse effects of climate change in MK Ranjitsinh and Ors v. Union of India (2024 SC), it affirmed that the right to a clean environment inherently includes protection from climate change effects.

Quick Tip

Always connect climate change protections with the right to a clean and healthy environment under Article 21.

45. Which of the following protocols focuses on limiting global temperature rise by reducing carbon emissions and combating climate change?

- (A) The Montreal Protocol
- (B) The Kyoto Protocol
- (C) The Paris Agreement
- (D) The Rio Declaration

Correct Answer: (C)

Solution:

The Paris Agreement (2015) focuses on limiting global temperature rise to below 2°C above pre-industrial levels and strives to limit it to 1.5°C. The agreement specifically aims at reducing carbon emissions and mitigating the effects of climate change through international cooperation and nationally determined contributions.

Quick Tip

The Paris Agreement is the most significant global pact for climate action, aiming for carbon emission reductions.

Passage

SEBI was established as India's principal capital markets regulator with the aim to protect the interest of investors in securities and promote the development and regulation of the securities market in India. SEBI is empowered to regulate the securities market in India by the SEBI Act 1992, the SCRA and the Depositories Act 1996. SEBI's powers to regulate the securities market are wide and include delegated legislative, administrative, and adjudicatory powers to enforce SEBI's regulations. SEBI exercises its delegated legislative power by inter alia framing regulations and appropriately amending them to keep up with the dynamic nature of the securities' market. SEBI has issued a number of regulations on various areas of security regulation which form the backbone of the framework governing the securities market in India. Section 11 of the SEBI Act lays down the functions of SEBI and expressly states that it "shall be the duty of the Board to protect the interests of investors in securities and to promote the development of, and to regulate the securities market, by such measures as it thinks fit". Further, Section 30 of the SEBI Act empowers SEBI to make regulations consistent with the Act. Significantly, while framing these regulations, SEBI consults its advisory committees consisting of domain experts, including market experts, leading market players, legal experts, technology experts, retired Judges of this Court or the High Courts, academicians, representatives of industry associations and investor associations. During the consultative process, SEBI also invites and duly considers comments from the public on their proposed regulations. SEBI follows similar consultative processes while reviewing and amending its regulations. (Extracted, with edits and revision, from the judgement in Vishal Tiwari v. Union of India, [2024] 1 S.C.R. 171)

46. Which of the following is not a committee set up by SEBI?

- (A) Technical Advisory Committee
- (B) Competition Advisory Committee
- (C) Intermediary Advisory Committee
- (D) Market Data Advisory Committee

Correct Answer: (B) Competition Advisory Committee

Solution: SEBI has established various advisory committees to help in formulating regulations and policies. However, the "Competition Advisory Committee" is not one of them. SEBI focuses on committees like the Technical Advisory Committee, Intermediary Advisory Committee, and Market Data Advisory Committee to regulate the market and its participants.

Quick Tip

Remember, SEBI's advisory committees are focused on technical, intermediary, and market data aspects, not competition.

47. Which among the following is not a function of SEBI?

- (A) Regulating substantial acquisition of shares and takeover of companies
- (B) Prohibiting and regulating self-regulatory organisations
- (C) Prohibiting insider trading in securities
- (D) Promoting investors' education and training of intermediaries of securities markets

Correct Answer: (B) Prohibiting and regulating self-regulatory organisations

Solution: While SEBI is responsible for regulating various aspects of the securities market, including acquisitions, insider trading, and investor education, it does not regulate self-regulatory organizations. The function mentioned in option (B) is generally handled by the self-regulatory organizations themselves, under SEBI's oversight.

Quick Tip

SEBI focuses on market regulation, investor protection, and enforcing securities law but not directly regulating self-regulatory organizations.

48. Match List I with List II.

List I (Section of Securities and Exchange Board of India Act, 1992)	List II (Provision for)
A. Section 6	I. Offences by companies
B. Section 11	II. Power to make regulations
C. Section 27	III. Removal of member from office
D. Section 30	IV. Functions of Board

Choose the correct answer:

- (A) A-I, B-III, C-II, D-IV
- (B) A-II, B-I, C-IV, D-III
- (C) A-III, B-IV, C-I, D-II
- (D) A-IV, B-II, C-III, D-I

Correct Answer: (C) A-III, B-IV, C-I, D-II

Solution:

- Section 6 deals with the removal of a member from office, which corresponds to III.
- Section 11 outlines the functions of the SEBI Board, which corresponds to IV.
- Section 27 refers to offences by companies, which corresponds to I.
- Section 30 grants the SEBI Board the power to make regulations, which corresponds to II.

Thus, the correct matching is:

A-III, B-IV, C-I, D-II.

Quick Tip

When solving matching questions related to Acts, focus on memorizing the primary functions of key sections for quick recall.

49. The process by which an organisation thinks about and evolves its relationships with stakeholders for the common good, and demonstrates its commitment in this regard by adoption of appropriate business processes and strategies is called

- (A) Annual general meeting
- (B) Corporate social responsibility
- (C) Issuing Shelf prospectus
- (D) Incorporation of a company

Correct Answer: (B) Corporate social responsibility

Solution: The process described in the question is called Corporate Social Responsibility (CSR), which involves a company's efforts to assess and take responsibility for its effects on environmental and social well-being. This process helps businesses adopt strategies that promote social good.

Quick Tip

CSR focuses on sustainability and long-term stakeholder value, not just profits.

50. In which of the following cases did the court struck down the attempt of the government to nationalise banks and pay minimal compensation to the shareholders?

- (A) Shri Sunil Siddharthbhai Etc v. Union of India
- (B) R.C. Cooper v. Union of India
- (C) United Bank of India v. Satyawati Tondon Ors
- (D) Punjab National Bank v. Union of India

Correct Answer: (B) R.C. Cooper v. Union of India

Solution: In the case of R.C. Cooper v. Union of India, the Supreme Court of India struck down the attempt by the government to nationalize banks and pay minimal compensation to the shareholders, ruling that such an action was unconstitutional.

Quick Tip

Remember, R.C. Cooper case dealt with the legality of bank nationalization and compensation to shareholders.

Passage

Article 14 of the Constitution stipulates that the State shall not deny to any person equality before the law or the equal protection of laws within the territory of India. Article 15(1) states that the State should not discriminate against any citizen on grounds only of religion, race, caste, sex, place of birth or any of them. Article 15(4) stipulates that nothing in Article 15 shall prevent the State from making any special provision for the advancement of any socially and educationally backward classes of citizens or for the Scheduled Castes and the Scheduled Tribes. Article 16 deals with equality of opportunity in matters of public employment. Clause (1) of Article 16 guarantees equality of opportunity for all citizens in matters relating to employment or appointment to any office under the State. Clause (2) stipulates that no citizen shall be discriminated in or be ineligible for any employment or office under the State on the grounds only of religion, race, caste, sex, descent, place of birth, residence or any of them. Clause (4) of the provision states that nothing in Article 16 shall prevent the State from making any provision for the reservation of appointments or posts in favour of any backward class of citizens, which in the opinion of the State, is not adequately represented in the services under the State. The purpose of the equal opportunity principle in Article 16(1) and the reservation provision in Article 16(4) has emerged as a focal point of the jurisprudence on reservations in this Court. A discussion of the journey of the competing models of equality that the Court has espoused and their evolution over the course of the years is necessary to understand the constitutional vision on equality. The impugned constitutional amendments by which Article 16 (4-A) and 16 (4-B) have been inserted, flow from Article 16 (4). They do not alter the structure of Article 16 (4). They retain the controlling factors or the compelling reasons which enables the State to provide for reservation keeping in mind the overall efficiency of the state administration under article 335. Sub-categorization within a class is a constitutional requirement to secure substantive equality in the event that there is a distinction between two sections of a class; Sub-classification must not lead to the exclusion of one of the categories in the class. A model that provides sufficient opportunities to all categories of the class must be adopted; and Sub-classification among a class must be on a reasonable basis. Justice Bela Trivedi opined, in dissent, that presidential list of scheduled castes notified under Article 341 cannot be altered by the States. Any change to this list can only be made by a law enacted by Parliament. Sub-classification, according to her would amount to tampering with the Presidential List and undermine the object Article 341, which aims to eliminate political influence in the SC-ST List. Further, she emphasised the importance of adhering to the rule of plain and literal interpretation. She mentions that any preferential treatment for a sub-class within the presidential list would deprive other classes within the same category of their benefits. In the absence of executive or legislative power, state lack the competence to sub-classify castes and the benefit reserved for all SCs. Allowing states to do so would constitute a colourable exercise of power, which is impermissible under law. Justice Trivedi concluded by affirming that affirmative action by States must remain within constitutional boundaries and held that the law laid down in E.V. Chinnaiah case was correct and should be upheld. (Extract from The State of Punjab & Ors. v. Davinder Singh & Ors. 2024 SC)

51. The issue of whether the State can further sub-classify within a class for the purpose of reservation first arose in:

- (A) MR Balaji v. State of Mysore
- (B) T. Devadasan v. Union of India
- (C) Akhil Bharatiya Soshit Karamchari Sangh (Railway) v. Union of India
- (D) The State of Punjab & Ors. v. Davinder Singh & Ors. 2020

Correct Answer: (A)

Solution:

The issue of sub-classification within a class for reservation first arose in the case of MR Balaji v. State of Mysore, where the Supreme Court discussed whether the State could further sub-classify backward classes for the purpose of reservations.

Quick Tip

The MR Balaji case was crucial in addressing the legality of sub-classification within backward classes for reservations.

52. Dr. B. R. Ambedkar, while proposing the inclusion of Articles 300A and 300B of the Draft Constitution (which correspond to Articles 341 and 342 of the Constitution), indicated that once notified, any elimination from the list or an addition to the list was to be made by Parliament and not by the President. This limitation was imposed to:

- (A) Protect the rights of the SCs and STs class people
- (B) To exclude the further interference of the Executive having a play in the matter of the disturbance in the Schedule so published by the President
- (C) To remove the discretion in the hands of Executive to save the interest of the SCs and STs people
- (D) To eliminate “political factors” from disturbing the list

Correct Answer: (B)

Solution:

Dr. B.R. Ambedkar’s intent in making Parliament the authority to modify the list of Scheduled Castes and Scheduled Tribes was to remove executive discretion and political interference, ensuring stability and fairness in the inclusion and exclusion process.

Quick Tip

Dr. Ambedkar emphasized the need for legislative control to avoid executive interference and political influence.

53. The trinity of Articles 14, 15, and 16 has provided a tool to march towards social and economic equality. Emphasis has been given to affirmative action so as to give a special treatment to the underprivileged so that they can march forward. Reservations in the matters of education and in public employment have been used to provide a special treatment to the backward classes. What are the other articles of the Constitution along with, the objective of the Constitution to achieve social economic equality may be achieved?

- (A) Arts. 46, 335 and 338

- (B) Arts. 335, 341 and 342
- (C) Arts. 46, 335, 338, 341 and 342
- (D) Arts. 46, 335 and 342

Correct Answer: (C)

Solution:

In addition to Articles 14, 15, and 16, Articles 46, 335, 338, 341, and 342 also contribute to achieving social and economic equality through affirmative actions, reservations, and protection for underprivileged classes.

Quick Tip

Articles 46, 335, 338, 341, and 342 further support affirmative action for backward classes in education and employment.

54. Hon'ble Justice B.R. Gavai, in the above-mentioned judgment held that, "sub-classification amongst the Scheduled Castes for giving more beneficial treatment is permissible in law". He also gave some criteria on which the sub-classification may be implemented by the State. Which of the following is that criteria?

- (A) The criteria for exclusion of the creamy layer from the Scheduled Castes and Scheduled Tribes for the purpose of affirmative action could be different from the criteria as applicable to the Other Backward Classes
- (B) Sub-classification would be permissible only if there is a reservation for a sub-class as well as the larger class
- (C) That while doing so, the State will have to justify the same on the basis of empirical data that a sub-class in whose favour such more beneficial treatment is provided is not adequately represented
- (D) All of the above

Correct Answer: (D)

Solution:

Justice B.R. Gavai's ruling made it clear that sub-classification among Scheduled Castes is permissible, provided there is empirical data to justify the inadequacy of representation of the sub-class. Moreover, criteria for exclusion from the creamy layer for Scheduled Castes may differ from that of Other Backward Classes.

Quick Tip

Sub-classification must be backed by empirical data and justification of under-representation.

55. Which of the following is not required for sub-classification of the Scheduled Caste?

- (A) The inadequacy of representation of a caste/group because of its backwardness
- (B) The data must be collected by the State on the inadequacy of representation of a caste in the "services of the State" because it is used as an indicator of backwardness
- (C) Efficiency of administration must be viewed in a manner which promotes inclusion and equality as required by Article 16(1)
- (D) The State in exercise of the power under Articles 15(4) and 16(4) is not required to further classify the Scheduled Castes

Correct Answer: (D)

Solution:

For sub-classification of the Scheduled Castes, it is essential to assess the inadequacy of representation, collect data, and consider the promotion of inclusion and equality. However, the State is not required to further classify the Scheduled Castes unless justified by specific empirical data.

Quick Tip

Sub-classification requires data and a focus on inclusivity, but further classification is not always necessary.

International Organisations have had a significant impact on the development of international law, effectively contributing to the establishment of a global constitutional system. According to Henkin, international organisations “represent new laws at its birth, for it is itself a child of law”. For instance, the Charter of the United Nations (UN) and its specialised agencies and other international organisations have played a crucial role in shaping international law. The World Health Organisation (WHO), the Organisation for Economic Cooperation and Development (OECD) and the International Labour Organisation (ILO) are among the organisations that have contributed to the significant transformation of international law sources, actors and processes over the past century. Since its establishment with an initial membership of fifty-one states, UN has undergone significant development, becoming a diverse and multidimensional global institution with a current membership of 193 nations. The UN has positioned itself as a global constitutional organisation, striving to safeguard and uphold a minimal world order. Numerous experts in International Law recognise the UN as a crucial international organisation for the maintenance of peace and security. (Rawa Almakky, “The Role of International Organisations in the Development of International Law: An Analytical Assessment of the United Nations”, International Scientific Journal on LAW and WORLD, Vol. 9 No. 28, 2023)

56. The Convention on International Civil Aviation is applicable only on:

- (A) State Aircraft
- (B) Civil Aircraft
- (C) War Aircraft
- (D) All of the above

Correct Answer: (B)

Solution:

The Convention on International Civil Aviation applies exclusively to Civil Aircraft. It sets out the rules and standards for international air travel and aviation safety, excluding military, state, or war aircraft.

Quick Tip

The Convention on Civil Aviation applies solely to civil aircraft, not state or military aircraft.

57. Meaning of the Latin phrase ‘ex aequo et bono’ as in legal term, is:

- (A) According to the equitable and good
- (B) On the basis of equity and fairness
- (C) Both (A) and (B)
- (D) None of the above

Correct Answer: (C)

Solution:

The Latin phrase ‘ex aequo et bono’ means to decide a case based on equity, fairness, and justice rather than strict legal rules. It is commonly used in arbitration and international law when legal rules may not adequately resolve the dispute.

Quick Tip

‘Ex aequo et bono’ emphasizes decisions based on fairness and equity over legal technicalities.

58. The Economic and Social Council consists of 54 Members of the United Nations elected by the General Assembly distributed as:

- (A) African States and Asia Pacific States
- (B) Eastern European, Western European and other States
- (C) Latin American and Caribbean States
- (D) All of the Above

Correct Answer: (D)

Solution:

The Economic and Social Council (ECOSOC) consists of 54 members, with representation from all global regions: African States, Asia-Pacific States, Eastern European States, Western European States, and Latin American and Caribbean States.

Quick Tip

ECOSOC includes representatives from all major global regions for balanced global representation.

59. Under which Art. of UN Charter General Assembly may establish such subsidiary organs as it deems necessary for the performance of its functions?

- (A) Art. 19 of UN Charter
- (B) Art. 20 of UN Charter
- (C) Art. 21 of UN Charter
- (D) Art. 22 of UN Charter

Correct Answer: (D)

Solution:

Article 22 of the UN Charter grants the General Assembly the power to establish subsidiary organs as necessary to perform its functions. This enables the Assembly to create specialized agencies and committees.

Quick Tip

Article 22 allows the General Assembly to create subsidiary organs for various functions.

60. Article 21 of the Constitution of WHO, each Member has undertaken the obligation to take action acceptance on Conventions adopted by:

- (A) One third votes of the Health Assembly
- (B) Two-third votes of the Health Assembly
- (C) Special Majority means Three-Fourth votes of the Health Assembly
- (D) All of the above

Correct Answer: (B)

Solution:

Article 21 of the WHO Constitution states that Member States are obliged to accept the Conventions adopted by the Health Assembly with a two-thirds majority vote. This ensures broad consensus among members on important health conventions.

Quick Tip

Two-thirds majority approval is required by the WHO Health Assembly to adopt conventions.

Passage

Live-in relationship, as such, as already indicated, is a relationship which has not been socially accepted in India, unlike many other countries. In Lata Singh v. State of U.P. [(2006) 5 SCC 475: (2006) 2 SCC (Cri) 478] it was observed that a live-in relationship between two consenting adults of heterosexual sex does not amount to any offence even though it may be perceived as immoral. However, in order to provide a remedy in civil law for protection of women, from being victims of such relationship, and to prevent the occurrence of domestic violence in the society, first time in India, the DV Act has been enacted to cover the couple having relationship in the nature of marriage, persons related by consanguinity, marriages, etc. We have few other legislations also where reliefs have been provided to woman placed in certain vulnerable situations. Section 125 Cr.P.C. of course, provides for maintenance of a destitute wife and Section 498-A IPC is related to mental cruelty inflicted on women by her husband and in-laws. Section 304-B IPC deals with the cases relating to dowry death. The Dowry Prohibition Act, 1961 was enacted to deal with the cases of dowry demands by the husband and family members. The Hindu Adoptions and Maintenance Act, 1956 provides for grant of maintenance to a legally wedded Hindu wife, and also deals with rules for adoption. The Hindu Marriage Act, 1955 refers to the provisions dealing with solemnisation of marriage also deals with the provisions for divorce. For the first time, though, the DV Act, Parliament has recognised a “relationship in the nature of marriage” and not a live-in relationship simpliciter. We have already stated, when we examine whether a relationship will fall within the expression “relationship in the nature of marriage” within the meaning of Section 2(f) of the DV Act, we should have a close analysis of the entire relationship invariably, it may be a question of fact and degree, whether a relationship between two unrelated persons of the opposite sex meets the tests judicially evolved. (This extract is taken from Indra Sarma v. V.K.V. Sarma, (2013) 15 SCC 755)

61. What is the scope of analysis required to determine if a relationship falls within the expression “relationship in the nature of marriage” under Section 2(f) of the DV Act?

- (A) Considering the number of children born in a live in relationship
- (B) Considering only the cohabitation period of the relationship and their emotional connectivity
- (C) Conducting a close analysis of the entire interpersonal relationship, taking into account all facets
- (D) Evaluating only the financial aspects and mutual agreements of the relationship, and if there is any written agreement between the partner

Correct Answer: (C)

Solution:

The relationship in the nature of marriage under Section 2(f) of the Domestic Violence Act involves a comprehensive analysis of the relationship. It includes not only cohabitation and emotional connectivity but also factors such as financial support, mutual agreements, and shared responsibilities.

Quick Tip

The entire interpersonal relationship, considering all aspects, is analyzed, not just co-habitation or emotional connection.

62. In which of the following case, the Supreme Court read down the word “adult male” in Section 2(q) of the Protection of Women from Domestic Violence Act, 2005?

- (A) Indra Sarma v. V.K.V. Sarma
- (B) Hiral P. Harsora v. Kusum Harsora
- (C) Uma Narayan v. Priya Krishna Prasad
- (D) All of the above

Correct Answer: (B)

Solution:

In the case of Hiral P. Harsora v. Kusum Harsora, the Supreme Court read down the term “adult male” in Section 2(q) of the Protection of Women from Domestic Violence Act, 2005, to include women in relationships of domestic violence.

Quick Tip

The term “adult male” was expanded to include women as per the Supreme Court’s judgment.

63. As per Section 20 of the Protection of Women from Domestic Violence Act, 2005, while disposing of an application under Section 12(1), the Magistrate may direct the respondent to pay monetary relief to the aggrieved person so that the aggrieved person can:

- (A) Live a life that meets at least the bare minimum needs for survival and basic well-being
- (B) Live a life that is consistent with her standard of living which she is accustomed
- (C) Live a life that is consistent with her parent’s standard of living

(D) Live a life which can cover her medical expenses and expenses incurred due to litigation of domestic violence

Correct Answer: (B)

Solution:

Section 20 of the Protection of Women from Domestic Violence Act allows the magistrate to provide monetary relief so that the aggrieved person can continue to live a life consistent with her standard of living, as she was accustomed before the domestic violence.

Quick Tip

The aim is to ensure the aggrieved person's life is maintained at a standard similar to what she was used to.

64. In which case, the three-judge bench of the Hon'ble Supreme Court has recently interpreted the term "shared household" and has held that "...lives or at any stage has lived in a domestic relationship..." have to be given its normal and purposeful meaning. The living of woman in a household has to refer to a living which has some permanency. Mere fleeting or casual living at different places shall not make a shared household?

- (A) Satish Chander Ahuja v. Sneha Ahuja
- (B) Rupa Ashok Hurra v. Ashok Hurra
- (C) S.R. Batra v. Tarun Batra
- (D) B.R. Mehta v. Atma Devi

Correct Answer: (C)

Solution:

In the case of S.R. Batra v. Tarun Batra, the Supreme Court clarified that the term "shared household" should have a normal, purposeful meaning and cannot apply to a casual or fleeting living arrangement. The woman's living in a household must have some permanency.

Quick Tip

The court emphasized that "shared household" requires permanency, not casual or temporary living.

65. Under Indian Law, can a woman in a live in relationship claim maintenance under S. 125, Cr.P.C. despite not being a legally wedded wife?

- (A) No, as per the interpretation of statute 'wife' means legally wedded wife and includes who has been divorced by, or has obtained a divorce from her husband
- (B) Yes, a woman in a live in relationship can claim maintenance u/s 125, Cr.P.C. as strict proof of marriage is not necessary and maintenance cannot be denied if evidence suggests cohabitation
- (C) A woman in live in relationship can only claim maintenance if she has been cohabiting for more than five years and dependent children from the relationship
- (D) A woman in live in relationship can claim maintenance only through a civil suit as the Protection of Women from Domestic Violence Act, 2005 (PWDVA) does not apply to live in relationships

Correct Answer: (B)

Solution:

Under Section 125 of the Cr.P.C., a woman in a live-in relationship can claim maintenance even without being legally married, as long as there is proof of cohabitation. The requirement of strict marriage proof is not necessary.

Quick Tip

Maintenance can be claimed based on cohabitation, without strict marriage proof under Section 125, Cr.P.C.

Passage

The Supreme Court affirmed that it is a well-established principle of administrative law that an adjudicatory body cannot base its decision on any material unless the person against whom it is sought to be utilized has been apprised of it and given an opportunity to respond to it. The court noted from MP Jain SN Jain's treatise on Principles of Administrative Law that if the adjudicatory body is going to rely on any material, evidence or document for its decision against a party, then the same must be brought to his notice and he be given an opportunity to rebut it or comment thereon. It is regarded as a fundamental principle of natural justice that no material ought to be relied on against a party without giving him an opportunity to respond to the same... The right to know the material on which the authority is going to base its decision is an element of the right to defend oneself. If without disclosing any evidence to the party, the authority takes it into its consideration, and decides the matter against the party, then the decision is vitiated for it amounts to denial of a real and effective opportunity to the party to meet the case against him. On the issue of the impact of such non-disclosure the Court referred to its earlier pronouncements and summarised the principles thus – A quasi-judicial authority has a duty to disclose the material that has been relied upon at the stage of adjudication. The actual test is whether the material that is required to be disclosed is relevant for purpose of adjudication. If it is, then the principles of natural justice require its due disclosure. The aggrieved person must be able to prove that prejudice has been caused to him due to non-disclosure. To prove prejudice, he must prove that had the material been disclosed to him the outcome or the punishment would have been different. (Extract with Edits taken from in Deepak Ananda Patil v. State of Maharashtra, (2023) 11 SCC 130)

66. Which principle is applied in the judgment?

- (A) Nemo judex in causa sua
- (B) Audi alteram partem
- (C) Ignorantia juris non excusat
- (D) Jus necessitatis

Correct Answer: (B)

Solution:

The principle applied in this judgment is "Audi alteram partem," which means "hear the other side." This principle ensures that both parties in a dispute are given an equal opportunity to present their case.

Quick Tip

"Audi alteram partem" ensures fairness by allowing both sides to be heard.

67. Non-Disclosure of material invalidates the order if:

- (A) The authority has not relied on the material
- (B) No prejudice is caused to the party
- (C) The material was relevant for the purpose of adjudication
- (D) The outcome would not have been any different if it was disclosed

Correct Answer: (C)

Solution:

Non-disclosure of material will invalidate an order if the material was relevant for the adjudication process. The material must be crucial to the case, and its omission can lead to an unfair decision.

Quick Tip

Relevant material must be disclosed as its non-disclosure could lead to invalidation of the order.

68. 'Real and effective opportunity' in the context of this judgment refers to:

- (A) Personal hearing
- (B) Right to rebut the evidence supplied to the party
- (C) Right to adduce evidence

(D) Right to know the evidence against oneself

Correct Answer: (D)

Solution:

The term “real and effective opportunity” refers to the right to know the evidence against oneself, ensuring the party has an adequate chance to respond to the allegations or evidence presented.

Quick Tip

“Real and effective opportunity” means the right to be fully aware of the case against you.

69. Which of the following requires compliance with the rule of fair hearing?

- (A) A notification bringing an Act into operation
- (B) Price Control Order under Essential Commodities Act
- (C) Notice issued by a Disciplinary Authority
- (D) Reasoned Decision by competent authority

Correct Answer: (C)

Solution:

The rule of fair hearing is required in cases where a person is entitled to a hearing, like a notice issued by a disciplinary authority. Fair hearing ensures that the affected individual can present their case before a decision is made.

Quick Tip

Fair hearing is essential in disciplinary proceedings to ensure natural justice.

70. Which of the following statements is false?

- (A) Proving prejudice to the party concerned is necessary to quash a quasi-judicial order on the ground of non-disclosure of evidence

(B) Principles of natural justice do not have exceptions

(C) Speaking order is a third principle of natural justice

(D) Legal representation can be validly disallowed before a quasi-judicial proceeding

Correct Answer: (B)

Solution:

Statement (B) is false. The principles of natural justice can have exceptions, especially in certain statutory or emergency situations. The principle of natural justice must be balanced with practical limitations in certain cases.

Quick Tip

Natural justice can have exceptions depending on the context, especially in urgent or statutory matters.

Passage

In Kapilaben v. Ashok Kumar Jayantilal Sheth, (2020) 20 SCC 648, the Supreme Court has considered that the assignment of a contract might result in a transfer of either rights or obligations thereunder. The transfer of obligations is not possible without the consent of the other party. However, the transfer of rights is permissible, except in cases where the contract is of a personal nature. “It is well-settled that the term ‘representative-in-interest’ includes the assignee of a contractual interest. Though the provisions of the Contract Act do not particularly deal with the assignability of contracts, the court has opined time and again that a party to a contract cannot assign their obligations or liabilities without the consent of the other party. A Constitution Bench in Khardah Co. Ltd. v. Raymon & Co. (India) (P) Ltd. [AIR 1962 SC 1810], has laid out this principle as follows: “An assignment of a contract might result by transfer either of the rights or of the obligations thereunder. However, there is a well-recognised distinction between these two classes of assignments. As a rule, obligations under a contract cannot be assigned except with the consent of the promisee, and when such consent is given, it is really a novation resulting in substitution of liabilities. On the other hand, rights under a contract are assignable unless the contract is personal in its nature or the rights are incapable of assignment either under the law or under an agreement between the parties.” [Extracted with edits from Indira Devi v. Veena Gupta, (2023) 8 SCC 124]

71. ‘A’, the absolute owner, with the consent of his family members, executed a conditional sale deed in favour of his tenant. The conditional sale deed contained a clause empowering the vendors to repurchase the property within seven years on repayment of the sale consideration. Which of the following statements regarding the agreement is true?

- (A) The agreement is invalid
- (B) The agreement is not valid because a conditional sale deed containing a clause for repurchase cannot be executed
- (C) The agreement is not valid because the time period provided for repurchase by the vendor is very long, i.e., seven years
- (D) The agreement is valid

Correct Answer: (D) The agreement is valid

Solution: A conditional sale deed that includes a clause for repurchase within a reasonable period, even if it extends to seven years, is valid under the Indian Contract Act, as long as it is agreed upon by both parties and does not contravene any statutory provisions.

Quick Tip

Conditional sale agreements with a repurchase clause are valid if the conditions are clear and agreed by both parties.

72. Which of the following is correct regarding the assignability of the contract?

- (A) The assignment of contracts is expressly governed by the provisions outlined in Sections

130 to 137 of the Indian Contract Act, 1872

- (B) A party to a contract can transfer his liabilities under the contract without the consent of the other party
- (C) A party to a contract cannot transfer his liabilities under the contract without the consent of the other party
- (D) Transfer of obligation can be made to anyone without permission of anyone

Correct Answer: (A) The assignment of contracts is expressly governed by the provisions outlined in Sections 130 to 137 of the Indian Contract Act, 1872

Solution:

- Statement (A) is correct: The provisions governing the assignment of contracts are outlined in Sections 130 to 137 of the Indian Contract Act, 1872. These sections deal with the assignment of rights and liabilities under contracts.
- Statement (B) is incorrect: A party cannot transfer his liabilities without the consent of the other party, unless explicitly allowed by the contract.
- Statement (C) is incorrect: This is a misleading statement as the transfer of liabilities without consent is generally prohibited under the Indian Contract Act, but the contract may provide for exceptions.
- Statement (D) is incorrect: Transfer of obligations typically requires the consent of the other party.

Quick Tip

The Indian Contract Act, 1872, explicitly governs the assignment of contracts under Sections 130-137.

73. Who among the following is not ‘representative-in-interest’ for the purpose of obtaining specific performance?

- (A) The person to whom the interest in the contract is transferred for a valuable consideration
- (B) The person to whom the interest in the contract devolves by succession

- (C) The person to whom the interest in contract is gifted by a gift deed
- (D) Rank trespasser, as an intermeddler

Correct Answer: (D) Rank trespasser, as an intermeddler

Solution: A "rank trespasser" or intermeddler has no legal standing to enforce specific performance of a contract, as they have no legitimate interest or title in the contract.

Quick Tip

Only legitimate representatives with vested interests or legal succession can seek specific performance.

74. Consider the following statements:

- I. The benefit of a contract is assignable in 'cases where it can make no difference to the person on whom the obligation lies to which of two persons, he is to discharge it'.
- II. A contract which is such that the promisor must perform it in person, viz. involving personal considerations or personal skill or qualifications (such as his credit), are by their nature not assignable.
- III. The contractual rights for the payment of money or to building work do not involve personal considerations and are not contracts of a personal nature.

Choose the correct answer:

- (A) I and II are correct
- (B) II and III are correct
- (C) Only III is correct
- (D) I, II and III are correct

Correct Answer: (C) Only III is correct

Solution:

- Statement I is incorrect: The benefit of a contract is assignable, but only in cases where the obligation on the other party remains unaffected.

- Statement II is incorrect: Contracts that involve personal skill or qualifications are generally not assignable, but the statement's description is too broad.
- Statement III is correct: The rights for payment of money or building work do not involve personal considerations and are not personal contracts.

Quick Tip

Remember: Contracts related to money and building work are typically not personal in nature and can often be assigned.

75. Consider the following statements:

- I. Where a party to the contract has obtained substituted performance of the contract as per law, such contract is not specifically enforceable.
- II. A contract, the performance of which involves the performance of a continuous duty which the court cannot supervise, is not specifically enforceable.
- III. After the Amendment Act of 2018, a contract for non-performance for which compensation is an adequate relief is not specifically enforceable.

Choose the correct answer:

- (A) All are correct
- (B) I and II are correct
- (C) II and III are correct
- (D) Only II is correct

Correct Answer: (C) II and III are correct

Solution:

- Statement I is incorrect: If substituted performance is already obtained, specific performance can still be enforceable in some cases.
- Statement II is correct: Contracts requiring ongoing duties that cannot be supervised by the court are not specifically enforceable.

- Statement III is correct: The 2018 Amendment clarifies that contracts where compensation is an adequate relief are not specifically enforceable.

Quick Tip

When compensation is adequate, courts generally do not enforce specific performance.

Passage

The Supreme Court recently examined the interplay between Section 47 of the Registration Act, 1908 and Section 54 of the Transfer of Property Act, 1882. Section 47 of the Registration Act titled “time from which registered document operates” states that registered document shall operate from the time from which it would have commenced to operate if no registration has been required or made. On the other hand, Section 54 of the Transfer of Property Act provides that the transfer of immovable property of value above Rs. 100 can be made only by a registered document. It is a trite law that a transfer of immovable property by way of sale can only be made by a deed of conveyance and in the absence of such deed that is duly stamped and registered as required by law, no right, title or interest in the immovable property can be transferred. The Court referred to an earlier decision in Ram Saran Lall v. Domini Kuer where a harmonious balance was maintained between the peremptory language of Section 54 of the Transfer of Property Act and the deeming fiction under Section 47 of the registration act. It also implicitly recognised that Section 54 draws a clear distinction between transfer of tangible immovable property of value more Rs. 100 and less than Rs. 100. In the former case, such transfer can only be made through a registered instrument, whereas in the latter case the transfer may be either by registered instrument or by delivery of property. (Extract from Kanwar Raj Singh v. Gejo, 2024 SC)

76. Which of the following is the effect of non-registration of a compulsorily registrable document?

- (A) The unregistered document cannot be adduced in evidence of any transaction affecting such property
- (B) As long as the terms, grant or disposition is in writing and fulfills the criteria of S. 91 of the Indian Evidence Act, it will be admitted as evidence
- (C) Procedure is a handmaid of justice and registration is merely a procedural requirement. Non-registration does not make the document less admissible in court
- (D) The unregistered document can be adduced in evidence if the party adducing it is able to prove its bonafide

Correct Answer: (A) The unregistered document cannot be adduced in evidence of any transaction affecting such property

Solution:

- Section 49 of the Registration Act, 1908 lays down that an unregistered document which is required to be registered by law cannot be used as evidence in court to prove the transaction affecting immovable property.

Thus, the correct answer is (A).

Quick Tip

A document that is required to be registered and is not registered cannot be used as evidence in a transaction affecting property.

77. A property from one person to the other can be transferred by way of:

- (A) Court sale, gift, will, inheritance, relinquishment
- (B) Dedication, gift, will, inheritance, relinquishment
- (C) Private or court sale, gift, will, inheritance, relinquishment, dedication
- (D) Private or court sale, gift, will, inheritance

Correct Answer: (C) Private or court sale, gift, will, inheritance, relinquishment, dedication

Solution:

- Transfer of property can happen through several methods including court sale, private sale, gift, will, inheritance, relinquishment, and dedication.

Thus, the correct answer is (C).

Quick Tip

Property can be transferred by private sale, court sale, gift, will, inheritance, relinquishment, or dedication.

78. Where the member of the family agrees to divide the property amongst themselves, not necessarily in accordance with the quantum as specified in law or according to their entitlement. It can take into its fold non-family members as well. Once effected, it is binding on all the members who were parties to it and is enforceable? This division is called:

- (A) Transfer of property under the Transfer of Property Act
- (B) Partition of joint Hindu Family
- (C) Family Arrangement
- (D) Partition in Interested parties

Correct Answer: (C) Family Arrangement

Solution:

- A Family Arrangement is an informal agreement between family members, often to settle disputes or divide property among them, which is binding once agreed upon, even if it does not strictly adhere to the legal entitlements.

Thus, the correct answer is (C).

Quick Tip

A Family Arrangement settles disputes and divides property among family members, even outside the legal entitlement framework.

79. Property and interest in the property as a general rule are transferable. This rule of transferability is based on the maxim:

- (A) Alienation rei praefertur juri accrescendi
- (B) Cuius est solum eius est usque ad coelum et usque ad infernos
- (C) Res nullius
- (D) Nemo dat quod non habet

Correct Answer: (D) Nemo dat quod non habet

Solution:

- The maxim "Nemo dat quod non habet" means "No one can give what they do not have". This maxim establishes the principle that property rights are transferable only if the person transferring the property has those rights.

Thus, the correct answer is (D).

Quick Tip

The maxim "Nemo dat quod non habet" means that a person can only transfer what they legally possess.

80. In a given case where a sale deed is executed and the entire agreed consideration is paid on or before execution of the sale deed, after it is registered, it will operate from:

- (A) Date of registration of the sale deed
- (B) Date of execution of the sale deed
- (C) Date on which communication of proposal was complete
- (D) None of the above

Correct Answer: (B) Date of execution of the sale deed

Solution:

- A sale deed operates from the date of execution, even though it is registered at a later date, as long as the agreed consideration is paid and the deed is executed.

Thus, the correct answer is (B).

Quick Tip

A sale deed operates from the date of execution, provided the entire consideration is paid.

Passage

Article 21 of the Constitution states that no person shall be deprived of his liberty except in accordance with procedure established by law. Conversely, we think that a person is entitled to the protection of his liberty only in accordance with law. When a person's liberty cannot be violated in breach of a law, can a person's liberty be protected even in the face of a breach or violation of law? In other words, should rule of law prevail over personal liberty of a person or vice-versa? Further, should this Court weigh in favour of a person's freedom and liberty even when it has been established that the same was granted in violation of law? Should the scales of justice tilt against rule of law? We wish to make it clear that only when rule of law prevails will liberty and all other fundamental rights would prevail under our Constitution including the right to equality and equal protection of law as enshrined in Article 14 thereof. Justice Nagarathna, who authored the judgement, began her pronouncement by invoking classical Greek Philosopher Plato. "Punishment is to be inflicted not for the sake of vengeance but for the sake of prevention and reformation. In his treatise, Plato reasons that the lawgiver, as far as he can, ought to imitate the doctor who does not apply his drug with a view to pain only, but to do the patient good. This curative theory of punishment likens penalty to medicine administered for the sake of the one being chastised. Thus, if a criminal is curable, he ought to be improved by education and other suitable arts and the set free as a better citizen and less of a burden to the state. This postulate lies at the heart of the policy of remission." Having said that, she also pointed out the competing interests involved, of the rights of the victim's family to justice and the right of the convicts to a second chance by remission or reduction of their sentence. She added, "A woman deserves respect howsoever high or low she may otherwise be considered in the society or whatever faith she may follow or whatever creed she may belong to. Can heinous crime against women permit remission of the convicts by a reduction in their sentence and by granting them liberty?” (This extract has been taken from Bilkis Yakoob Rasul v. Union of India (2024) 5 SCC 481)

81. On which grounds remission can be denied?

- (A) On the discretion of the appropriate government
- (B) On the central government’s discretion
- (C) On the state government’s discretion
- (D) None of the above

Correct Answer: (A) On the discretion of the appropriate government

Solution:

- Remission refers to the reduction or suspension of a sentence, and it is generally granted at the discretion of the appropriate government.
- The appropriate government is the state government under whose jurisdiction the offense was committed and the convict was sentenced.

Thus, the correct answer is (A).

Quick Tip

Remission can be denied at the discretion of the appropriate government under whose jurisdiction the offense occurred.

82. Which of the following is not related to remission?

- (A) State (Govt. of NCT of Delhi) v. Prem Raj, 2003 7 SCC
- (B) Sarat Chandra Rabha v. Khagendranath, AIR 1961 SC 334
- (C) Both (A) and (B)
- (D) Neither (A) nor (B)

Correct Answer: (C) Both (A) and (B)

Solution:

- State (Govt. of NCT of Delhi) v. Prem Raj (2003 7 SCC) and Sarat Chandra Rabha v. Khagendranath (AIR 1961 SC 334) are related to the application of remission in different contexts.
- Both are not directly linked to the legal principles of remission as defined under the Cr.P.C. and related case law.

Thus, the correct answer is (C).

Quick Tip

Both the cases mentioned are not directly related to the provisions of remission under Cr.P.C.

83. Which of the following needs to be considered while entertaining an application for remission under the provisions of Cr.P.C., 1973?

- (A) The application for remission under Section 432 of the Cr.P.C., 1973 could be only before the Government of the State within whose territorial jurisdiction the applicant was convicted (appropriate Government) and not before any other Government within whose territorial jurisdiction the applicant may have been transferred on conviction or where the offence has occurred
- (B) A consideration for remission must be by way of an application under Section 432 of the Cr.P.C., 1973 which has to be made by the convict or on his behalf. In the first instance whether there is compliance with Section 433A of the Cr.P.C., 1973 must be noted in as much as a person serving a life sentence cannot seek remission unless fourteen years of imprisonment has been completed
- (C) Both (A) and (B)
- (D) Only (A)

Correct Answer: (C) Both (A) and (B)

Solution:

- According to Section 432 of Cr.P.C., remission applications can only be made before the appropriate government (the government in the jurisdiction where the conviction occurred).
- Additionally, the convict must meet the requirements of Section 433A, which stipulates that a convict serving a life sentence must complete 14 years of imprisonment before applying for remission.

Thus, the correct answer is (C).

Quick Tip

Both the jurisdiction and completion of the required sentence period are crucial for remission applications.

84. According to Section 432 (2) of Cr.P.C. when deciding on an application for remission, the government may seek the opinion of the presiding judge. In Bilkis Bano Case, how did the court interpret the expression “may” regarding the government’s duty to seek the opinion of the judge?

- (A) The expression “may” indicate that it is optional for the government to seek the opinion of the presiding judge
- (B) The expression “may” mean that government can seek the opinion of any judge, not necessarily the presiding judge
- (C) The expression “may” must be interpreted as “shall”, making it mandatory for the government to seek the opinion of the presiding judge
- (D) The expression “may” allow the presiding judge to refuse providing an opinion on the application for remission

Correct Answer: (C) The expression “may” must be interpreted as “shall”, making it mandatory for the government to seek the opinion of the presiding judge

Solution:

- In the Bilkis Bano case, the court held that the word “may” in Section 432(2) should be interpreted as “shall”, making it mandatory for the government to seek the opinion of the presiding judge before granting remission.

Thus, the correct answer is (C).

Quick Tip

In the Bilkis Bano case, the court interpreted “may” as “shall”, making it mandatory for the government to seek the opinion of the presiding judge.

85. In Bhartiya Nagarik Suraksha Sanhita, 2023, the provision for commutation of a sentence of imprisonment of life has replaced the term ‘not exceeding fourteen years or of fine’ of the Cr.P.C. with:

- (A) not less than seven years
- (B) not less than ten years
- (C) not more than twenty years
- (D) seven years

Correct Answer: (B) not less than ten years

Solution:

- In the Bhartiya Nagarik Suraksha Sanhita, 2023, the provision for commutation of a life sentence has replaced the earlier provision of “not exceeding fourteen years or fine” with “not less than ten years”.

Thus, the correct answer is (B).

Quick Tip

Under the Bhartiya Nagarik Suraksha Sanhita, 2023, life sentence commutation requires a minimum of ten years.

Passage

^The elements of tort of negligence consist in – (A) duty of care; (b) duty is owed to the plaintiff; (c) the duty has been carelessly breached. Negligence does not entail liability unless the exacts a duty in the given circumstances to observe care. Duty is an obligation recognised by law to avoid conduct fraught with unreasonable risk of damage to others. The question whether duty exists in a particular situation involves determination of law. Hence, three ingredients are necessary for the existence of a duty of care: (i) foreseeability of the damage, (ii) proximity of relationship between the parties; and (iii) whether it is “just, fair and reasonable” that the law should impose a duty of care. In Caparo Industries Plc. v. Dickman, 1990 2AC 605, the court held that breach of duty is concerned with the standard of care that ought to have been adopted in the circumstances and whether the defendant’s conduct fell below that standard i.e., whether he was careless. The court while quoting Rajkot Municipal Corporation v. Manjulben Jayantilal Nakum, 1997 stated that as a tort, negligence consists of legal duty to take care and breach of that duty. Duty determines whether the type of loss suffered by the plaintiff in the particular way in which it occurred can ever be actionable. The division of negligence into duty, breach and consequent damage is convenient for the purpose of exposition but it can be confusing because the issues will often overlap. The process of determining a breach of duty involves three steps: First, it is necessary to ascertain the qualities of the reasonable person, given the qualities attributed to him, would have taken in the circumstances. The factors that are permissible to take into account in this regard are prescribed by law, but the amount of care that the reasonable person would have taken is a question of fact. Thirdly, it must be determined whether the defendant took less care than the reasonable person would have taken. (Extracts from Managing Director, Kerala Tourism Development Corporation Limited v. Deepti Singh and Ors., 2019 SC)

86. In the context of negligence, which of the following scenarios best demonstrates the presence of all essential elements?

- (A) A doctor prescribes the wrong medication to a patient, but the patient’s immune system prevents any harmful side effects and the patient does not suffer any injury
- (B) A driver runs a red light, narrowly avoiding an accident with another car and both vehicles continue without any collision or harm

- (C) A hotel guest tragically drowns in the swimming pool as the lifeguard was assigned duties as a part time bartender
- (D) A construction company delays necessary maintenance on a bridge and despite having major cracks the bridge remains functional

Correct Answer: (C)

Solution:

In negligence cases, the essential elements include duty of care, breach of duty, causation, and injury. Option (C) demonstrates all these elements: the hotel had a duty to ensure safety, the lifeguard's breach of duty led to a fatal accident, which resulted in harm.

Quick Tip

Negligence requires that harm must occur due to a breach of duty. In cases like (C), there's a direct link between breach and injury.

87. Reasonable foreseeability means:

- (A) Mere possibility
- (B) Expectation of sensible person
- (C) Foreseeability of probable consequences of his act by an average prudent person
- (D) Remote possibility of a particular consequence of his consequence by a reasonable person

Correct Answer: (C)

Solution:

Reasonable foreseeability refers to the ability of a reasonable person to predict the probable consequences of their actions. Option (C) defines it precisely as the foreseeability of probable consequences by an average prudent person.

Quick Tip

Reasonable foreseeability does not refer to mere possibility, but to the likely outcomes of an act that a prudent person could anticipate.

88. A renowned judgment in which reasonable foreseeability test was discussed by the Privy Council, was:

- (A) Scott v. Shephard
- (B) Overseas Tankship UK Ltd. v. Morts Dock and Engineering Co. Ltd. (Wagon Mound Case)
- (C) Donoghue v. Stevenson
- (D) Re Polemis and Furness, Withy Co

Correct Answer: (B)

Solution:

The Wagon Mound case (Overseas Tankship UK Ltd. v. Morts Dock) is the famous Privy Council judgment in which the test for reasonable foreseeability was laid down. It established that a defendant is only liable for the foreseeable consequences of their actions.

Quick Tip

The Wagon Mound case emphasized that liability in negligence is limited to consequences that are reasonably foreseeable.

89. In which of the following judgment the neighbour principle was propounded?

- (A) Scott v. Shephard
- (B) Rylands v. Fletcher
- (C) Donoghue v. Stevenson
- (D) Overseas Tankship UK Ltd. v. Morts Dock and Engineering Co. Ltd. (Wagon Mound Case)

Correct Answer: (C)

Solution:

The neighbour principle was propounded in Donoghue v. Stevenson, where Lord Atkin established that one must take reasonable care to avoid acts or omissions that could foreseeably harm their neighbors—those closely and directly affected by one’s actions.

Quick Tip

The neighbor principle from Donoghue v. Stevenson is foundational in determining who can be owed a duty of care in negligence cases.

90. Compensation is to be assessed on the basis of:

- (A) Rough estimate of loss generally resulting from death
- (B) Approximate calculation of damage as a result of death
- (C) Legitimate expectation of loss of pecuniary benefits
- (D) Closeness in relationship between claimants and the deceased

Correct Answer: (C)

Solution:

Compensation in wrongful death cases is typically assessed based on the legitimate expectation of pecuniary benefits that the deceased would have provided, such as income or other financial support to the claimants.

Quick Tip

Compensation for death is often based on the expected financial support the deceased would have contributed.

Passage

“The power to pardon is a part of the constitutional scheme, and we have no doubt, in our mind, that it should be so treated also in the Indian Republic. It has been reposed by the people through the Constitution in the Head of the State, and enjoys high status. It is a constitutional responsibility of great significance, to be exercised when occasion arises in accordance with the discretion contemplated by the context. It is not denied, and indeed it has been repeatedly affirmed in the course of argument by learned counsels appearing for the Petitioner that the power to pardon rests on the advice tendered by the Executive to the President, who subject to the provisions of Art. 74(1) of the Constitution, must act in accordance with such advice.....” We are of the view that it is open to the President in the exercise of the power vested in him by Art. 72 of the Constitution to scrutinise the evidence on the record of the criminal case and come to a different conclusion from that recorded by the court in regard to the guilt of, and sentence imposed on the accused. In doing so, the President does not amend or modify or supersede the judicial record. The judicial record remains intact, and undisturbed. The President acts in a wholly different plane from that in which the Court acted. He acts under a constitutional power, the nature of which is entirely different from the judicial power and cannot be regarded as an extension of it. This is so, notwithstanding that the practical effect of the Presidential act is to remove the stigma of guilt from the accused or to remit the sentence imposed on him. It is apparent that the power under Art. 72 entitles the President to examine the record of evidence of the criminal case and to determine for himself whether the case is one deserving the grant of the relief falling within that power. We are of opinion that the President is entitled to go into the merits of the case notwithstanding that it has been judicially concluded by the consideration given to it by this Court. In Kehar Singh v. Union of India, 1989 SC, this court stated that the same obviously means that the affected party need not be given the reasons. The question whether reasons can or cannot be disclosed to the Court when the same is challenged was not the subject-matter of consideration. In any event, the absence of any obligation to convey the reasons does not mean that there should not be legitimate or relevant reasons for passing the order. [Extract from the judgment of Shatrughan Chauhan v. Union of India 2014 (3) SCC 1]

91. Which one of the following statements is correct with respect to the granting of pardon by the President?

- (A) The power to grant pardon is a constitutional duty. Hence, judicial review is available, just as any executive action
- (B) Granting pardon being the privilege of the President, no judicial review is available against the decision of the President in granting or refusing to grant a pardon
- (C) The constitution expressly conferred the power to grant pardon to the President hence, the President is not bound to rely on the aid advice of the executive

(D) The President's power to grant pardon can be reviewed on the grounds of non-application of mind

Correct Answer: (B) Granting pardon being the privilege of the President, no judicial review is available against the decision of the President in granting or refusing to grant a pardon

Solution:

- The President's power to grant pardon is a discretionary power under Article 72 of the Constitution of India. Judicial review is generally not available against the decision of the President, as it is considered a privilege.

- Judicial review is not available unless there is an issue of the non-application of mind or mala fide intentions.

Thus, the correct answer is (B).

Quick Tip

The President's power to grant a pardon is a privilege and is generally not subject to judicial review.

92. In the above case the Supreme Court held that a minimum period of _____days be stipulated between the receipt of communication of the rejection of the mercy petition and the scheduled date of execution.

(A) 15

(B) 30

(C) 14

(D) No such time was fixed

Correct Answer: (B) 30

Solution:

- In the case of Shatrughan Chauhan v. Union of India, the Supreme Court held that there should be a minimum period of 30 days between the communication of the rejection of the mercy petition and the scheduled date of execution.

Thus, the correct answer is (B).

Quick Tip

The Supreme Court mandates a 30-day gap between rejection of the mercy petition and execution.

93. What is not true about Art. 21 of Constitution of India?

- (A) Insanity is not a relevant supervening factor for commutation of death sentence
- (B) Right to life of a person continues till his last breath and that Court will protect that right even if the noose is being tied on the condemned person's neck
- (C) The anguish of alternating hope and despair, the agony of uncertainty and the consequence of such suffering on the mental, emotional and physical integrity and health violates Art. 21 of the prisoners
- (D) Art. 21 is a substantive right and not merely procedural

Correct Answer: (A) Insanity is not a relevant supervening factor for commutation of death sentence

Solution:

- Article 21 of the Indian Constitution protects the right to life and personal liberty, and this right cannot be taken away except according to the procedure established by law.
- Option (A) is incorrect because insanity is a valid factor for the commutation of a death sentence under Article 21.
- The Supreme Court has held that mental agony caused by prolonged uncertainty is a violation of the right to life.

Thus, the correct answer is (A).

Quick Tip

Insanity can be a valid factor in the commutation of a death sentence under Article 21.

94. In which case, the Supreme Court held that if the crime is brutal and heinous and involves the killing of a large number of innocent people without any reason, delay cannot be the sole factor for the commutation of the death sentence to life imprisonment?

- (A) Devender Pal Singh Bhullar v. State (NCT) of Delhi
- (B) V. Sriharan Murugan v. Union of India
- (C) Yakub Abdul Razak Memon v. State of Maharashtra
- (D) Shatrughan Chauhan v. Union of India

Correct Answer: (A) Devender Pal Singh Bhullar v. State (NCT) of Delhi

Solution:

- In the case of Devender Pal Singh Bhullar v. State (NCT) of Delhi, the Supreme Court ruled that even if there is a delay in the execution of the death sentence, if the crime is heinous and brutal, involving large-scale loss of innocent lives, delay alone cannot justify commutation to life imprisonment.

Thus, the correct answer is (A).

Quick Tip

Delay in execution does not automatically lead to commutation of death sentence if the crime is heinous.

95. The President's power to grant a pardon

- (A) Can be delegated to the Council of Ministers
- (B) Cannot be delegated as it is an essential legislative function
- (C) Cannot be delegated as it is expressly conferred on the President
- (D) Can be delegated to the Vice-president in the absence of the President

Correct Answer: (C) Cannot be delegated as it is expressly conferred on the President

Solution:

- The power to grant pardon is explicitly conferred on the President by Article 72 of the Constitution of India. This power cannot be delegated to any other body, including the Council of Ministers or the Vice President.

Thus, the correct answer is (C).

Quick Tip

The power to grant a pardon is explicitly conferred on the President and cannot be delegated.

Passage

For a principle to be acceptable as a law, Lon Fuller states that it must be measured in terms of the following eight standards:

(1) The principle must be expounded in a manner so that it can be generally applied. A pattern less ad hoc system of law lacks the desired “internal morality” which legal principles should possess. This proposition is comparable to the often-read statement that our government is a government of laws rather than men. (2) The mandates of the law must be communicated to the people to whom they are directed. (3) Newly announced principles of law, except on rare occasions, should be applied only in a prospective manner. Retroactive application of changes in prescribed norms, subject to the presence of compelling extenuating circumstances, should be avoided. (4) Standards of action and inaction should be clearly stated. Fuller concedes that the lawmaker cannot specify with absolute clarity exactly what is demanded of each individual in every instance when the law may affect him. He does, however, assert that the duty to clarify the law should be delegated to the enforcement bodies only to the extent that such action is required by the environment in which the law must operate. (5) Arguing that respect for the law calls for consistency, Fuller maintains that the originators of laws should take great pains to see that the body of law is as free as possible from contradictory mandates, (6) Emphasizing that law is tied to the capabilities of human beings, Fuller insists that those who prescribe the norms required of individuals must refrain from imposing impossible standards of action or inaction. A stated norm which demands an absurd course of action would violate Fuller’s idea of the “internal morality of law.” (7) While stare decisis, of recent date, has been viewed by some, if not many people, as a barrier on the pathways to needed change, Fuller is of the opinion that abiding by previously announced norms is desirable in and of itself. He finds that frequency of change, by its very nature, tends to have a deleterious impact upon the persons who are subjected to an abrupt alteration of the requirements which the law imposes upon them. (8) The student of American history is familiar with Andrew Jackson's assertion to the effect that while the Supreme Court might render a judgment, it lacked the means by which it might be implemented.

96. What does Fuller refer to with the term “promulgation”?

- (A) The retroactive application of laws
- (B) The consistent application of laws
- (C) The clear communication of laws to those they affect
- (D) The economic impact of laws

Correct Answer: (C) The clear communication of laws to those they affect

Solution: Fuller uses the term “promulgation” to emphasize the need for laws to be clearly communicated to the people they affect. Laws that are not properly communicated cannot be effectively followed or enforced.

Quick Tip

For laws to be just and effective, they must be communicated clearly to all individuals they concern. This is central to the concept of promulgation in Fuller's theory.

97. Which of the following best describes the central issue in the Hart-Fuller debate?

- (A) The influence of morality on state
- (B) Whether law and morality are inherently connected
- (C) The role of judges in interpreting morality
- (D) The influence of religious values on legal system

Correct Answer: (B) Whether law and morality are inherently connected

Solution: The central issue in the Hart-Fuller debate concerns whether law and morality are inherently connected. Hart, representing legal positivism, argued that law is separate from morality, while Fuller believed that laws must align with moral standards to be valid.

Quick Tip

The Hart-Fuller debate revolves around the question of whether laws should reflect moral principles or if they are purely a system of rules without moral considerations.

98. What was Lon Fuller's main criticism of Hart's legal positivism?

- (A) It ignores moral obligations of a judge to make decisions on ethics
- (B) It places too much emphasis on legal rules without considering their moral implication
- (C) It ignores the role of international law in shaping domestic legal systems
- (D) All of the above

Correct Answer: (B) It places too much emphasis on legal rules without considering their moral implication

Solution: Fuller's main criticism of Hart's legal positivism is that it focuses too much on the structure of legal rules without addressing their moral implications. Fuller argues that law must be intertwined with morality to ensure justice.

Quick Tip

Fuller believed that legal positivism fails to account for the moral responsibilities embedded in law, which are crucial for a just legal system.

99. Why does Fuller argue that legal standards should be free from contradictions?

- (A) To allow for greater judicial discretion
- (B) To ensure laws are adaptable to different situations
- (C) To maintain respect for the law and ensure consistency
- (D) To simplify legal education

Correct Answer: (C) To maintain respect for the law and ensure consistency

Solution: Fuller argues that legal standards should be free from contradictions to maintain respect for the law. Contradictory laws undermine the rule of law and create confusion, making it difficult for individuals to comply with legal norms.

Quick Tip

Legal standards should be consistent to foster respect for the law and ensure that it is applied fairly and predictably.

100. Which of the following best describes the concept of “internal morality” in law according to Lon Fuller?

- (A) Law should be flexible and adaptive to individual circumstances
- (B) Law should be explained with clarity and precision
- (C) Law should prioritize economic efficiency
- (D) Law should be created by popular vote

Correct Answer: (B) Law should be explained with clarity and precision

Solution: Fuller’s concept of “internal morality” in law emphasizes that laws should be clear, precise, and understandable, ensuring that individuals can follow them. This clarity is essential for ensuring that laws are just and functional.

Quick Tip

Internal morality of law refers to the idea that laws must be clear, understandable, and accessible, enabling individuals to comply with them.

Passage

In the present case, the levy of IGST on the supply of ocean freight services under the reverse charge mechanism on the importer, when the value of such service is already included in the transaction value of imported goods, amounts to double taxation. The concept of double taxation implies that the same subject matter is taxed twice when it should be taxed only once. The GST law, as framed, does not envisage taxation of a transaction twice, and the fundamental principles of GST do not support such an imposition. Further, the importer, who is not the recipient of the service but is treated as a deemed recipient under the reverse charge mechanism, cannot be made liable to pay tax on a service that they have not directly availed. This stretches the scope of reverse charge mechanism beyond its intended purpose, which is to simplify tax collection by shifting the liability to pay tax from the service provider to the service recipient, particularly in cases where the service provider is located outside India and does not have a presence within the taxable territory. Moreover, the constitutional framework requires that a tax should be levied with legislative competence and should not contravene any fundamental rights guaranteed under the Constitution. The imposition of IGST on ocean freight under the reverse charge mechanism without proper legislative backing undermines the very essence of taxation principles enshrined in the Constitution of India. (This extract is taken from Mohit Minerals v. Union of India CA No. 1390/2022)

- 101. According to the Mohit Minerals Pvt. Ltd. v. Union of India judgment, what constitutes double taxation in the context of GST on ocean freight? (A) Taxing both the importer and the exporter for the same service
- (B) Tax not payable on ocean freight under the RCM for CIF imports
- (C) Taxing the service provider and the service recipient for the same service
- (D) Taxing the importer for both the goods and the services separately

Correct Answer: (B) Tax not payable on ocean freight under the RCM for CIF imports

Solution:

- The correct answer is (B) because the Mohit Minerals case ruled that under the reverse charge mechanism (RCM), tax should not be paid on ocean freight for CIF imports, as it leads to double taxation.

- Statement (A) is incorrect: It does not directly address the ocean freight double taxation issue.
- Statement (C) is incorrect: It refers to other kinds of service taxes, not specifically ocean freight.
- Statement (D) is incorrect: The case does not deal with separate taxation of goods and services.

Quick Tip

For CIF imports, tax is not payable on ocean freight under RCM, to avoid double taxation.

102. Assertion (A): The importer should not be liable to pay GST on ocean freight under the reverse charge mechanism if they are not the direct recipient of the service.

- (A) Both A and R are true, and R is the correct explanation of A
- (B) Both A and R are true, but R is not the correct explanation of A
- (C) A is true, but R is false
- (D) A is false, but R is true

Correct Answer: (A) Both A and R are true, and R is the correct explanation of A Solution: The importer is not the direct recipient of ocean freight services but is still made liable to pay GST under the reverse charge mechanism. The rationale is that the tax burden needs to shift to the importer within India, although they are not directly receiving the service.

Quick Tip

Always remember that under RCM, the importer assumes the liability of tax even if they aren't directly receiving the service. The reverse charge is designed to ensure that foreign service providers don't face tax obligations in India.

103. Consider the following statements regarding the Mohit Minerals Pvt. Ltd. v. Union of India judgment:

1. The Supreme Court ruled that imposing GST on ocean freight charges under the reverse charge mechanism leads to double taxation
2. The importer, not being the direct recipient of the service, should not be liable to pay GST on ocean freight
3. The judgment emphasized that tax laws must have proper legislative backing to prevent contravention of fundamental rights

- (A) 1 and 2 only
(B) 1 and 3 only
(C) 2 and 3 only
(D) 1, 2 and 3

Correct Answer: (D) 1, 2 and 3

Solution: All three statements are correct. The Supreme Court ruled that double taxation arises under RCM, the importer is not liable for GST since they aren't the direct recipient, and emphasized that tax laws should adhere to legislative norms to protect fundamental rights.

Quick Tip

In case of double taxation, the court often emphasizes the need for clarity in tax laws. RCM ensures foreign service providers don't pay taxes in India but the importer does, even if they aren't the direct service recipient.

104. Consider the following statements:

1. The reverse charge mechanism shifts the tax liability from the service provider to the service recipient.
2. The principle of single taxation was violated by imposing GST on ocean freight charges already included in the cost of imported goods.
3. The judgment clarified that importers can be liable for GST on services directly availed by them.

Which of the statements given above are correct?

- (A) 1 and 2 only
- (B) 1 and 3 only
- (C) 2 and 3 only
- (D) 1, 2 and 3

Correct Answer: (D) 1, 2 and 3

Solution:

- Statement 1 is correct: The reverse charge mechanism indeed shifts the tax liability from the service provider to the service recipient.
- Statement 2 is correct: Imposing GST on ocean freight charges, which are already included in the cost of imported goods, violated the principle of single taxation.
- Statement 3 is correct: The judgment clarified that importers can be liable for GST on services that are directly availed by them.

Thus, all three statements are correct.

Quick Tip

In reverse charge mechanisms, the service recipient becomes liable to pay tax instead of the service provider.

105. According to the judgment, what is the constitutional requirement for levying a tax?

- (A) The tax should be easy to administer
- (B) The tax should have legislative competence and not contravene fundamental rights
- (C) The tax should be progressive in nature
- (D) The tax should only apply to domestic transactions

Correct Answer: (B) The tax should have legislative competence and not contravene fundamental rights

Solution:

- Option (A) is incorrect: While ease of administration is important, it is not the primary constitutional requirement for levying a tax. - Option (B) is correct: The Constitution mandates that a tax must be within the legislative competence of the concerned authority and should not violate fundamental rights. - Option (C) is incorrect: A tax may or may not be progressive, but this is not a constitutional requirement. - Option (D) is incorrect: Taxes can apply to both domestic and international transactions, as long as they meet constitutional requirements.

Thus, the correct answer is (B).

Quick Tip

For taxes to be constitutional, they must fall within the legislative scope and must not infringe upon fundamental rights.

Passage

The Hon'ble Supreme Court in the case of 'Nil Ratan Kundu and another v. Abhijit Kundu' 2008(3) Apex Court Judgements 232 (SC), while granting the custody to the maternal grandparents observed: In our judgement, the law relating to custody of a child is fairly well settled and it is this. In deciding a difficult and complex question as to custody of minor, a Court of law should keep in mind relevant statutes and the rights flowing therefrom. But such cases cannot be decided solely by interpreting legal provisions. It is a humane problem in live in relationship and is required to be solved with human touch. A Court while dealing with custody cases, is neither bound by statutes nor by strict rules of evidence or procedure nor by precedents. In selecting proper guardian of a minor, the paramount consideration should be the welfare and well-being of the child. In selecting a guardian, the Court is exercising parens patriae jurisdiction and is expected, may bound, to give due weight to a child's ordinary comfort, contentment, health, education, intellectual development and favorable surroundings. But over and above physical comforts, moral and ethical values cannot be ignored. They are equally, or we may say, even more important, essential and indispensable consideration. If the minor is old enough to form an intelligent preference or judgement, the Court must consider such preference as well, though the final decision should rest with the Court as to what is conducive to the welfare of the minor. The Hon'ble Supreme Court in the case of 'Gaurav Nagpal v. Semedha Nagpal'-(2009)1 SCC 42, while giving paramount importance to the welfare of the child, which should include moral and ethical values, besides ethical well-being, observed as under: - When the court is confronted with conflicting demands made by the parents, each time it has to justify the demands. The Court has not only to look at the issue on legalistic basis, in such matters human angles are relevant for deciding those issues. The Court then does not give emphasis on what the parties say, it has to exercise a jurisdiction which is aimed at the welfare of the minor. As observed recently in Mausami Moitra Ganguli case, the Court has to give due weightage to the child's ordinary contentment, health, education, intellectual development and favorable surroundings, but over and above physical comforts, the moral and ethical values have also to be noted. They are equal if not more important than the others. (Extracts from Jaswinder Singh and Another vs Surjit Singh, AIR 2010 (NOC) 425 (P. & H.))

106. According to the passage, which is the most indispensable consideration in deciding the matters of custody of the child?

- (A) Financial ability of the parents
- (B) Sex of the child and its age at the relevant time
- (C) Physical Comfort, possibility of recreational activities of the child
- (D) Environment conducive to development of moral and ethical values

Correct Answer: (D)

Solution:

The most indispensable consideration in matters of child custody, according to the passage, is ensuring that the environment is conducive to the development of moral and ethical values, which is paramount in the best interest of the child.

Quick Tip

A healthy moral and ethical environment is considered essential for the child's holistic development.

107. The provision of custody of child under the Hindu Minority and Guardianship Act, 1956 gives:

- (A) Right of custody to mother, if child is below five years of age
- (B) Preferential custody right to father
- (C) Custody right to any close relative who is found suitable
- (D) Preferential consideration to mother, in case the child is below five years of age

Correct Answer: (D)

Solution:

Under the Hindu Minority and Guardianship Act, 1956, there is preferential consideration given to the mother for the custody of a child below the age of five years, reflecting the importance of maternal care at an early stage.

Quick Tip

The welfare of the child under five is often closely tied to maternal care in Hindu law.

108. The sensitivity in judicial decision making is manifest in this passage from the court's observation that:

- (A) Custody of child can be given to grandparents
- (B) Welfare of child is paramount consideration
- (C) Ethical and moral wellbeing is given priority
- (D) Custody cases cannot be decided solely by interpreting legal provisions but is required to be solved with human touch

Correct Answer: (D)

Solution:

The passage emphasizes that custody cases should not be decided purely on legal provisions but should be approached with sensitivity, acknowledging the importance of human touch in addressing the welfare of the child.

Quick Tip

Judicial sensitivity in custody cases requires a humanized approach, balancing law with the child's welfare.

109. What does the passage state about the opinion of a child who is old enough to state its preference regarding custody?

- (A) The child has a right to get custody order according to his preference
- (B) The child's preference in relation to his custody is immaterial
- (C) The child's preference must be considered but the court is the final deciding authority regarding the custody
- (D) Court is bound by the child's preference in relation to custody even if it differs in its opinion about whom to grant the custody

Correct Answer: (C)

Solution:

The passage mentions that the child's preference regarding custody must be considered, but it is ultimately the court's decision to determine the custody arrangement, with the child's welfare as the guiding principle.

Quick Tip

While the child's preference is important, the final decision lies with the court based on the child's best interests.

110. The considerations for the decision in relation to custody of child, is subject to which of the following basis as mentioned in Sec.13 of the Hindu Minority and Guardianship Act, 1956?

- (A) Welfare of the child is the paramount consideration
- (B) Wishes of the child form the primary basis in custody cases
- (C) Child's health and educational needs are primary considerations
- (D) Suitability of the person claiming custody is the basic consideration

Correct Answer: (A)

Solution:

Section 13 of the Hindu Minority and Guardianship Act, 1956 clearly establishes that the welfare of the child is the paramount consideration in deciding matters of custody, overriding other factors.

Quick Tip

The welfare of the child is always the most important factor in custody decisions under Hindu law.

Passage

The environmental rule of law, at a certain level, is a facet of the concept of the rule of law. But it includes specific features that are unique to environmental governance, features which are sui-generis. The environmental rule of law seeks to create essential tools such as conceptual, procedural and institutional, to bring structure to the discourse on environmental protection. It does so to enhance our understanding of environmental challenges of how they have been shaped by humanity's interface with nature in the past, how they continue to be affected by its engagement with nature in the present and the prospects for the future, if we were not to radically alter the course of destruction which humanity's actions have charted. The environmental rule of law seeks to facilitate a multi-disciplinary analysis of the nature and consequences of carbon footprints and in doing so it brings a shared understanding between science, regulatory decisions and policy perspectives in the field of environmental protection. It recognises that the “law” element in the environmental rule of law does not make the concept peculiarly the preserve of Lawyers and Judges. On the contrary, it seeks to draw within the fold all stakeholders in formulating strategies to deal with current challenges posed by environmental degradation, climate change and the destruction of habitats. The environmental rule of law seeks a unified understanding of these concepts. There are significant linkages between concepts such as sustainable development, the polluter pays principle etc. The universe of nature is indivisible and integrated. The state of the environment in one part of the earth affects and is fundamentally affected by what occurs in another part. Every element of the environment shares a symbiotic relationship with the others. It is this inseparable bond and connect which the environmental rule of law seeks to explore and understand in order to find solutions to the pressing problems which threaten the existence of humanity. The environmental rule of law is founded on the need to understand the consequences of our actions going beyond local, State and national boundaries. The rise in the oceans threatens not just maritime communities. The rise in temperatures, dilution of glaciers and growing desertification have consequences which go beyond the communities and creatures whose habitats are threatened. They affect the future survival of the entire eco-system. The environmental rule of law attempts to weave an understanding of the connections in the natural environment which make the issue of survival a unified challenge which confronts human societies everywhere. (Extract from Pragnesh Shah v. Arunkumar Sharma (2022) 11 SCC 493)

111. What distinguishes the environmental rule of law from the broader concept of the rule of law?

- (A) Its exclusive focus on legal principles
- (B) Its emphasis on environmental governance
- (C) Its reliance on judicial decisions
- (D) Its alignment with international treaties

Correct Answer: (B)

Solution:

The environmental rule of law primarily focuses on environmental governance, which includes principles, regulations, and frameworks dedicated to addressing environmental protection, unlike the broader rule of law that encompasses a variety of legal domains.

Quick Tip

The environmental rule of law places special emphasis on environmental governance and protection.

112. What is the primary objective of the environmental rule of law?

- (A) To protect wildlife habitats
- (B) To enhance understanding of environmental challenges
- (C) To promote economic development
- (D) To enforce local environmental regulations

Correct Answer: (B)Solution:

The primary objective of the environmental rule of law is to enhance understanding of environmental challenges and ensure that legal frameworks effectively address issues related to environmental protection and governance at all levels.

Quick Tip

The focus is on understanding and addressing environmental challenges through law.

113. Environmental Protection and Improvement were incorporated into the Constitution of India by inserting Articles 48-A and 51-A (g) by virtue of which of the following amendments?

- (A) 42nd Amendment Act, 1976
- (B) 44th Amendment Act, 1978

- (C) 45th Amendment Act, 1980
(D) 35th Amendment Act, 1974

Correct Answer: (A)

Solution:

The 42nd Amendment Act, 1976, incorporated environmental protection into the Indian Constitution by adding Articles 48-A (to direct the state to protect and improve the environment) and 51-A(g) (to make it a fundamental duty of citizens).

Quick Tip

The 42nd Amendment introduced environmental provisions into the Indian Constitution.

114. In which international forum did the 'Environmental rule of Law' find recognition for the first time?

- (A) Stockholm Conference on Human Environment, 1970
(B) Rio Declaration on Environment, 1992
(C) Johannesburg Declaration on Sustainable Development, 2002
(D) UNEP's Governing Council Decision 279, 2013

Correct Answer: (A)

Solution:

The concept of the 'Environmental Rule of Law' was first recognized at the Stockholm Conference on Human Environment in 1970, which laid the groundwork for the international environmental governance framework.

Quick Tip

The Stockholm Conference (1970) is where the environmental rule of law was first recognized.

115. What does the environmental rule of law seek to achieve beyond local and national boundaries?

- (A) Economic growth
- (B) Environmental justice
- (C) Political stability
- (D) Cultural preservation

Correct Answer: (B)

Solution:

The environmental rule of law seeks to achieve environmental justice on a global scale by ensuring that environmental laws and regulations are applied consistently and equitably across borders, contributing to sustainable development.

Quick Tip

The goal is environmental justice beyond local and national boundaries.

Passage

Ahmadi, J. (as he then was) speaking for himself and Punchhi, J., endorsed the recommendations in the following words-The time is ripe for taking stock of the working of the various Tribunals set up in the country after the insertion of Articles 323-A and 323-B in the Constitution. After the incorporation of these two articles, Acts have been enacted where-under tribunals have been constituted for dispensation of justice. Sufficient time has passed and experience gained in these last few years for taking stock of the situation with a view to finding out if they have served the purpose and objectives for which they were constituted. Complaints have been heard in regard to the functioning of other tribunals as well and it is time that a body like the Law Commission of India has a comprehensive look-in with a view to suggesting measures for their improved functioning. That body can also suggest changes in the different statutes and evolve a model on the basis whereof tribunals may be constituted or reconstituted with a view to ensuring greater independence. An intensive and extensive study needs to be undertaken by the Law Commission in regard to the Constitution of tribunals under various statutes with a view to ensuring their independence so that the public confidence in such tribunals may increase and the quality of their performance may improve. Before parting with the case, it is necessary to express our anguish over the ineffectiveness of the alternative mechanism devised for judicial review. The judicial review and remedy are the fundamental rights of the citizens. The dispensation of justice by the tribunal is much to be desired. (Extracted with Edits from R.K. Jain v. Union of India, 1993 (4) SCC 119)

116. In which of the following case the Court held that though judicial review is a basic feature of the Constitution, the vesting of the power of judicial review in an alternative institutional mechanism, after taking it away from the High Courts, would not violate the basic structure so long as it was ensured that the alternative mechanism was an effective and real substitute for the High Court?

- (A) L. Chandra Kumar v. Union of India and Others 1997
- (B) R.K. Jain v. Union of India 1993
- (C) S.P. Sampath Kumar v. Union of India 1985
- (D) Kesvananda Bharati v. State of Kerala 1973

Correct Answer: (A)

Solution:

In the L. Chandra Kumar case (1997), the Supreme Court held that while judicial review is a basic feature of the Constitution, the judicial review powers could be vested in alternative mechanisms such as administrative tribunals. However, this would not violate the basic structure, as long as the mechanism is effective and a real substitute.

Quick Tip

Judicial review, though basic, can be entrusted to alternative mechanisms if they provide an effective substitute.

117. The provisions of the Administrative Tribunals Act, 1985 shall not apply to:

- (A) Any member of the naval, military or air forces or of any other armed forces of the Union
- (B) Officer or servant of the Supreme Court or of any High Court or Courts subordinate
- (C) Person appointed to the secretarial staff of either House of Parliament or to the secretarial staff of any State Legislature or a House thereof or, in the case of a Union Territory having a Legislature, of that Legislature
- (D) All of the above

Correct Answer: (A)

Solution:

The provisions of the Administrative Tribunals Act, 1985 do not apply to members of the armed forces (military, naval, air) under Section 14 of the Act. Hence, the correct answer is (A).

Quick Tip

The Administrative Tribunals Act, 1985 excludes members of the armed forces from its provisions.

118. The first tribunal established in India is:

- (A) Central Administrative Tribunal
- (B) Railway Claims Tribunal
- (C) Armed Forces Tribunal
- (D) Income tax Appellate Tribunal

Correct Answer: (D)

Solution:

The Income Tax Appellate Tribunal (ITAT) was the first tribunal established in India in 1941. It deals with disputes related to income tax.

Quick Tip

The ITAT, established in 1941, was India's first tribunal, specifically for resolving income tax-related disputes.

119. Articles 323-A and 323-B of the Indian Constitution for the establishment of tribunal to adjudicate disputes in specific matters. While both articles deal with tribunals, there are key differences in their scope and application. Which of the following statement correctly reflects the distinction between Articles 323-A and 323-B?

- (A) Article 323-A exclusively deals with administrative tribunals for public service matters, while Article 323-B deals with the tribunals for a wider range of subjects including taxation and land reforms
- (B) While tribunals under Article 323-A can be established only by Parliament, tribunals under Article 323-B can only be established by State legislature, with matters falling within their legislative competence
- (C) Under Article 323-A, only one tribunal for centre and no tribunal for state may be established. As far as Article 323-B is concerned, there is no hierarchy of tribunals
- (D) Article 323-A grant tribunals the power to hear appeals directly from the Supreme Court, by passing the High Court. Under Article 323-B there is no such power

Correct Answer: (A)

Solution:

Article 323-A deals with administrative tribunals for matters related to public services, whereas Article 323-B provides for tribunals on a wider range of subjects, such as taxation, land reforms, and industrial disputes. Thus, option (A) is the correct distinction.

Quick Tip

Article 323-A is specific to public service matters, while Article 323-B covers a broader range of subject matter for tribunals.

120. The National Green Tribunal Act was passed in the year:

- (A) 2007
- (B) 2008
- (C) 2009
- (D) 2010

Correct Answer: (D)

Solution:

The National Green Tribunal Act was passed in 2010 to provide for the establishment of the National Green Tribunal for the effective and expeditious disposal of cases relating to environmental protection and conservation of forests and other natural resources.

Quick Tip

The National Green Tribunal was established in 2010 for resolving environmental disputes in India.
